Assize Trial For Boy Charged With Attempted Murder

John Birtelsen, 17-year-old Brentwood youth, who was identified by Constable Stanley Cornish as the boy who shot him in the abdomen on July 20, was committed to the assizes by Magistrate Hall in city police court today to face a charge of attempted murder.

The police officer who was discharged from Jubilee Hospital a short time ago, looked pale and thin as he walked slowly into the courtroom dressed in a business suit.

He told his story without faltering after Magistrate Henry C. Hall advised him "not to overdo it" and to ask to be excused at any time if he did not feel well.

Cornish said he was sitting in his car with Constable John Deans Blackstock outside of Blackstock's home at 1510 Hillside Avenue at about 12.10 in the morning of July 20 when his attention was drawn to a passing car traveling in an easterly direction on Hillside Avenue.

"We gave chase and pulled alongside this car at Hillside Avenue and Shelbourne Street," Cornish related.

"Constable Blackstock was questioning the driver of the car when he shouted to me 'Stan, around the other side.'

"I ran around the back of the car and saw the accused standing with a gun in his hand.

"I just got a look at the accused and he shot me.

Fell To Ground Wounded

"I fell to the ground. I guess I went out but I came to after hitting the ground. A girl who was in the car was standing over me."

In answer to a question from defence counsel Jack Rutan, Cornish said the accused had been sitting in the front seat of the car on the right-hand side. But when he went around to that side the accused was standing outside the car.

Dr. William A. McElmoyle testified the wound Cornish received was usually fatal.

"Wounds of this kind are prone to cause death. There is a high mortality rate, especially when the wound is on the right side," he said.

The doctor had testified that the officer had apparently been shot by a bullet which entered the left side of his abdomen near the navel, had torn two gashes, four and three inches long, and had passed through the abdomen, coming out of his back on the right side. The bullet had missed the right kidney by one-quarter of an inch and had splintered a rib.

He said the officer was operated on about one hour and a half after being admitted to hospital and that he was suffering a great deal of pain and profound shock.

Constable Blackstock told the court he saw Birtelsen shoot Cornish. He said it had occurred after he had called to his fellow officer to go around to the other side of the car while he was questioning the driver, Gilfred Aastrom.

"I had jumped out of Cornish's car and had taken hold of the arm of the driver of the car we chased. The accused was sitting in the front seat and a girl, Beverly Mitcham also was in the car.

"The driver of the car said, 'What's up?' and told him we were police officers and asked him whose car he was driving.

"He glanced towards the accused and said, 'his father's.'

"I asked him for the registration slip which he handed me and saw that the car belonged to Eddie Malek.

"The accused started to move around in the seat and it was then that I called to Constable Cornish to go around to the other side of the car.

"After Birtelsen shot Cornish, he stood for a minute and then ran north on Shelbourne Street. He ran very fast," Blackstock testified.

Constable Blackstock said he picked up a cartridge case on the road at the scene of the shooting and had been given a metal jacket hard-point bullet at the hospital.

H. T. Zala, 2206 Lydia Street, night orderly at the hospital, said the bullet given Blackstock was taken from Cornish's clothing after he had been brought to the emergency ward.

Detective Louis Callon testified he apprehended Birtelsen at his home at Brentwood Bay at about 10.30 in the morning of July 20. Birtelsen's father admitted the detective to their house and Birtelsen was sitting at the kitchen table.

"And he had a small suitcase at his feet," Callon said.

"I told him what we were investigating and asked him for the gun," the detective continued.

Youth Led Police To Pistol

In consequence of this Birtelsen got in the police car and we drove to 3965 Cedar Hill Cross Road. The accused got out and we followed him into this property for about 50 feet. The accused then took from under some leaves at the foot of a tree, a pistol which he handed to me," Callon said.

There was a cartridge in the breech and three in the clip, he added, which, he said, he took with the pistol, a spent bullet and cartridge case given to him by Constable Blackstock to Inspector J. F. C. B. Vance, Vancouver police criminologist, on July 24.

Inspector Vance testified he used one of the cartridges in the clip to make a test shot, and found that the spent bullet in the test shot had similar marks to that which Detective Callon brought him.

"In my opinion the same gun fired the two shots," he said.

Beverly Mitcham testified that on the afternoon of July 19, she, Gilfred Aastrom and accused broke up after having lunch at the Dot Mar Cafe, Yates Street. She went by bus with Aastrom to the latter's home on the road to Brentwood.

She said that at 5 in the evening Birtelsen called for them in a car. "Gilfred asked him whose car it was and I heard Johnny say it belonged to his father," Mitcham told of a trip to Sidney and district and of drinking several bottles of two dozen beer secured. "We came back to town and got another girl, Mary Day, whose only address I know is General Delivery, Vancouver, and went to the Crystal Garden to dance."

When asked by Prosecutor

Harrison when she first saw the gun in the case, she said she saw it at the back of the front-seat cushion. "Johnny Birtelsen showed me how to load it. Aastrom was driving. My only comment on the gun was that it was a nice-looking gun," Birtelsen, she continued, put the gun in the glove compartment of the car "and I never saw it afterward." She thought it was still there when she went into the dance. Witness said they left the Crystal Garden about 11.30 and after dropping Miss Day off "the three of us proceeded along Hillside, Aastrom driving, and when we got to Shelbourne Street we were stopped. I saw Johnny (the accused) step out of the door and I heard a shot and saw Johnny running. That's all I know."

Gilfred Aastrom, who resides at Hospital Farm, R.R. 1, said that he had some beer with Birtelsen at the Army and Navy club at 1 in the afternoon of July 19 and as a result of drinking more beer secured at the Chalet, Deep Cove, that night, "I was pretty tight."

He said the first he saw of the gun was when Constable Cornish was shot. Aastrom said that when Birtelsen called for him and Mitcham on West Saanich Road in the evening he had asked accused whose car it was and had been answered, "It's my father's."

Government To Meet School Board On College Issue; Students Hold Parade

The Council of Public Instruction, which is the provincial cabinet, will meet the Greater Victoria School Board tomorrow morning at 10.30 in the Parliament Buildings to discuss conditions at Victoria College and their possible solution, Education Minister George M. Weir announced today.

The Victoria members of the Legislature will attend the meeting.

At a meeting of the school board Wednesday, application was made to the Council of Public Instruction for the interview, Austin I. Curtis, chairman, said today.

PARADE TO BUILDINGS

Four abreast, students of Victoria College today at noon marched through downtown streets to the Parliament Buildings, paced by drums and bagpipes to bring their protest against overcrowding at Craigdarroch forcibly to the attention of Victoria citizens.

The parade was almost a block and a half in length and took 10 minutes to pass. Among the students marching could be seen many who stepped out with military precision to the beat of the drums.

Banners and placards were carried by many, the first one carried by Students' Representative Council members, "Into the College of Death Filed the 600."

Others read: "The government says nothing is too good for the veterans. Gentlemen, they mean it, we've got nothing"; "A Castle for Dunsinuir—a Fire Trap for Us"; "L.S.M.F.T., Less Space Means Fire Trap"; "The Normal or Nothing"; "We Demand Action"; "Never Has So Little Been Denied So Many By So Few"; and "Will the Government Fiddle While the College Burns."

CIRCULATING PETITIONS.

Sympathetic crowds gathered all along the parade route to shout encouragement to the marching students, and chuckle at the slogans, while a sound truck kept up a running commentary asking the citizens to sign the petition which is being circulated in downtown Victoria this afternoon. Tables have been set up in some stores, where shoppers will be asked to sign the petition, which asks that the Normal School and Victoria College be exchanged, to give the Victoria College students, the benefits of the 13' classrooms and other facilities in the larger building.

Student president Terry Garner asked the citizens: "Is a fair exchange too much to ask? A compromise is not a solution." Other comments characterized the government offer to split the student body a "ridiculous offer."

As the parade turned on to Douglas Street at Fort a corps of motorcycle riders joined the parade, weaving in and out and bearing more placards.

GIRL MEMBERS SING

A number of the girl marchers took up the refrain of "It's a long, long way to the Normal, but our heart's right there" to the tune of Tipperary.

During the week-end the students will carry on a house-to-house canvass to get more signatures to their petition, which is to be presented to Premier John Hart early next week.

The parade went down to the Parliament Buildings, circled through the driveway in front of the Buildings and out at Menzies Street to disband there. The students immediately scattered through the town with their petitions to start the task of gaining a public expression of the support they want to get the Normal School.

Cardinals Slash Out 20 Hits To Beat Boston 12-3

FENWAY PARK, Boston (AP)—St. Louis tied an all-time world series record with 20 hits today as they dwarfed the Boston Red Sox' vaunted power with a 12 to 3 series-squaring victory that assured the 1946 world series of going at least six games.

George Munger, very much the underdog in the pregame figuring, was able to coast home to an easy nine-hit win as the Cards routed Tex Hughson and blasted five other hurriers to even the classic at two wins each.

The crowd of 35,645 sat in stunned silence as the Red Birds rioted all over the plate, led by the big three of the middle of their batting order, Enos Slaughter, Whitey Kurowski and Joe Garagiola.

USES SIX HURLERS

In the complete rout of the Sox, Joe Cronin equalled an all-time series mark by using six pitchers. Four more players joined the 22 previous stars who each had four hits in a series game.

MONTREAL (CP)—Canadian railways announced today they had applied to the Board of Transport Commissioners for a general advance of 30 per cent in freight rates. The application was made by the Railway Association of Canada for its 23 members.

Application also has been made to the Prices Board for concurrence in the increases if approved by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

The increase is asked "for all freight rates except those for coal and coke, where it is suggested an increase be given of 20 cents per ton in rates to and including $1 per ton, 30 cents per ton in rates from $1.01 to and including $1.50 per ton, and 40 cents per ton in rates in over $1.50 per ton.

Rates affected by the proposed increases would include those on freight from and to United States-Canadian border points, on import and export traffic through Canadian ports moving at rates not related to rates in effect from and to United States ports, and on a number of other categories.

The latter include all class and commodity rates, agreed charges, milk and cream in passenger service, collection - on - delivery service, local switching charges—including inter-plant and intraplant and reconsigning switching charges, special freight trains, crane service, railway equipment on own wheels and other accessory and terminal charges.

The application also contains suggestions dealing with minimum charges, differentials and disposition of fractions.

In support of the application, the association contends that Canadian railway companies "are in the unique and perilous position that they have been operating under rigidly controlled freight rates in the face of steadily mounting costs, not merely since the adoption of price control in 1941, but since the outbreak of war."

In the first two war years, industry generally had taken full advantage of its freedom to increase prices and industrial prices were frozen at such higher levels in December, 1931, the association added.

"Railway rates, on the other hand, have not been increased since the outbreak of war (with the exception of increases limited in their application to international through rates in effect from and to United States ports, following certain interim increases in rates granted to the United States railroads by the Interstate Commerce Commission).

"Indeed the general level of freight rates has not been increased over the reduced level established by the board of transport commissioners in 1922, but in many instances rates had actually been decreased prior to the war."

The association holds that there has been an "enormous" increase in railway operating costs.

U.S. Commerce Chamber Demands 'Lid Ripped Off' Communists

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States Chamber of Commerce demanded today that Congress rip the lid off the Communist Party to end its power and influence in American labor's ranks and within the government itself.

Declaring Communists still are operating under an international commintern bent upon world conquest, the organization added that because the party "thrives upon deceit" and is loyal to a "hostile" foreign power, it should be "forced by law" to reveal its membership, sources of money and all its activities.

The report drew freely from the Canadian Royal Commission report of last June and charged that the Communist Party "is engaged in secret and conspiratorial activities within our borders."

The chamber's report, based on a year-long investigation by a special committee on socialism and communism, asserted that red infiltration into the government has been particularly marked in both the Treasury and Labor Departments.

A treasury spokesman quickly retorted the department "naturally has no comment on so general statement."

However, Labor Secretary Schwelmbach said that charges of subversive activity had been brought by the Federal Bureau of Investigation against "a number of Labor Department employees," and that an investigation has been underway for several days. Five cases already had been studied and two others are set for inquiry.

On the labor front, the chamber declared that while the late Sidney Hillman was not a Communist, nor is C.I.O. President Philip Murray, "two of their top advisers are Communists, taking direct and frequent orders on P.A.C. (C.I.O.-Political Action Committee) policy from the very top level of the Communist Party."

The advisers were not named.

Fleet Air Arm Reserve To Be Established Here

Victoria is to have a Fleet Air Arm Reserve with a complement of 10 officers and 50 men, and recruiting will begin as soon as H.M.C.S. Malahat, the reserve division here, is re-commissioned.

Lt.-Cmdr. W. M. Gage, Staff Officer, Recruiting and Reserve, R.C.N. (R), revealed today.

The Fleet Air Arm Reserve of 60 officers and men will be over and above the complement of 400 men laid down for the R.C.N. (R) here, Cmdr. Gage said.

As active recruiting will begin on re-commissioning of Malahat, Cmdr. Gage asked that any officers with previous experience in the Fleet Air Arm of the R.C.N. or R.N. and who are interested in organization of a Fleet Air Arm Reserve here contact him at the recruiting office at 1238 Government Street.

Seafires and Spitfires, the standard type of planes employed on the modern R.C.N. carrier will be used. H.M.C.S. Warrior is the carrier to be based here.

It is not anticipated an individual plane will be allocated to Cmdr. Gage said, but facilities of the carrier to be based at Esquimalt will, in all probability be available.

It is also anticipated at least one plane of standard type will be stationed at the Fleet Air Arm to be established in Vancouver and this plane will also be available in the event of the carrier being away on a cruise.

Navy League Honors Lt.-Cmdr. Tribe For 26 Years' Sea Cadet Service

Lt.-Cmdr. P. W. Tribe, recently-retired commander of R.C.S.C. Rainbow, left, receives the congratulations of Rear-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., R.C.N., C.O.P.C., as the admiral makes a presentation on behalf of the Navy League.

Members of the Navy League of Victoria and Vancouver Island honored Lt.-Cmdr. P. W. Tribe, retired commander of R.C.S.C. Rainbow, at a testimonial dinner held in the Empress Hotel Wednesday evening.

E. F. Fox, chairman, in the opening address, said those officers taking over from Cmdr. Tribe had an excellent example to follow. They would also face the difficult task of attempting to provide discipline for youth during the apathy towards discipline which occurred in a post-war period; Mr. Fox added.

He introduced Forrest L. Shaw, president of the league, who spoke of the long service Cmdr. Tribe had devoted to the sea cadet movement. The retired Rainbow commander had been responsible for organization of the sea cadet work here 26 years ago, when it was known as the Boys' Naval Brigade, and he had given devoted service to the organization since then, Mr. Shaw said.

He also quoted a number of figures showing the large number of boys who had gone through the corps and later seen service with the navy during the war.

Mr. Shaw read a telegram from the Dominion Council of the league in Toronto, lauding the work of Cmdr. Tribe.

A life membership in the league was presented the retiring officer by Mr. Shaw.

A large smoking stand, with pipe and humidifier and with a suitably engraved plaque was presented to Cmdr. Tribe by Rear-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., R.C.N., Commanding Officer Pacific Coast, on behalf of the league.

The admiral praised the work done by Cmdr. Tribe with the sea cadet corps. He stressed the need for such training for the young people of today, a need, he said, which the corps filled.

Organizations such as the navy relied for its recruits on people who had such training, Admiral Mainguy said.

A ships clock was also presented to Cmdr. Tribe by Lieut. C. Powell, newly-appointed commander of R.C.S.C. Rainbow, on behalf of the wardroom officers of the ship.

Radar, Cameras Track Course Of Meteors Across America; Victorians See Display

By Canadian Press

Canada and most of the United States were treated to a spectacular display of shooting stars Wednesday night as meteors shed by the comet Giacobini-Zinner burned across the sky in what some scientists said was the most brilliant exhibition seen in North America this century.

Canadian government astronomers, driven from their observatory near Ottawa by threatening weather, flew 250 miles to North Bay, Ont., and set up their cameras and spectrographs on the roof of the airport administration building. They made their observations in clear, cold weather until after midnight, then flew back to Ottawa to develop the plates and conduct their researches.

Ironically, the clouds in the Ottawa area dispersed by about 8 p.m., E.S.T., and the sky there was perfectly clear during the height of the display.

MANY DISAPPOINTED

Dense clouds marred or completely obliterated the view for many watchers of the skies in some sections of the United States.

Scientists used radar and for the first recorded time reported they "saw" a display of meteors beyond fog and clouds. Observers from the United States Bureau of Standards in Washington said they were sure that "pips" appearing on the radar screen represented meteors about 50 miles from earth.

United States scientists also boarded airplanes to get above thick clouds for a glimpse of the aerial fireworks, and Harvard astronomers in an "aerial planetarium" reported seeing meteors at the rate of about 17 per minute.

Hundreds of shooting stars so clear, so close that it looked as if a giant artificial fireworks display was in progress, brought Victorians out of doors Wednesday night to peer skyward for nearly two hours.

Although no official study was made of the display here, most of the city watched in wonderment and awe. It was thought to be the most spectacular show of shooting stars ever seen here.

At the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory at Little Saanich Mountain, staff scientists watched the meteor shower from the track of the comet Giacobini-Zinner, but made no official study of the display because work there is purely of an astrophysical nature.

Dr. J. A. Pearce, director, however explained that the comet passed through the plane of the earth's orbit on Oct. 1, and that last night the earth passed within 131,000 miles of the comet's path.

SPECTACLE FOR VICTORIANS
Result was that Victoria with its clear crystal skies saw debris from the disintegrating comet flashing through the heavens at more than 300 meteors a minute at times.

The show started soon after dark and seemed to radiate north and west of the star Vega. The shooting stars made a brilliant pattern below the zenith and towards the southwestern horizon. Some of them flamed and blanked out in the same instant. Others laid an incandescent trail across a large por-

Newsman Braves Tiger Cage For Story

TORONTO (CP) — Carroll Allen, Toronto Globe and Mail feature writer, Wednesday climbed into the tiger cage at a circus, looked two big cats straight in the eye and emerged without a scratch.

"Just don't turn your back on them and above all don't lose your head," attendants told her as she went in. Trainer Joe Walsh cracked a whip at tigers Bombay and Princess, handed the reporter a four-foot pole and warned her:

"Keep that between you and Bombay. And stay right behind me. No matter what happens, don't move too quickly. You don't want to frighten the cats." First woman and the second person to enter the tiger cage, Miss Allen faced the cats and gave them a steady stare. As a news photographer's bulbs flashed, cats leaped and she subdued them. One tiger rose on his hind legs and roared. About that time attendants released the reporter from the cage and told her cheerfully:

"You know, you almost got it a couple of times."

NANAIMO — The Board of School Trustees of Nanaimo district will call for tenders for a $22,000 addition to the school gymnasium approved by referendum two years ago, it was decided at a meeting of the board. However, it was not believed likely any bids will be received at this time.

Indians Lack School Facilities

PORT ALBERNI — Because school buildings in the Alberni district already are crowded to their full capacity, approximately 40 Indian children in the Alberni Valley who are without school accommodation at present will be unable to receive tuition in existing schools, the Alberni District School Board has informed the Department of Indian Affairs.

A letter to the board from the department indicated that it was planned to build further schools for these children when building conditions became better. The

Alberni To Discuss Power Plebiscite

PORT ALBERNI — The Alberni and Port Alberni city councils plan a joint discussion on holding a plebiscite regarding public ownership of electric power supply facilities in the district, at present provided by National Utilities Corporation.

The B.C. Power Commission recently cleared a path for a power line to the district from Campbell River. This line will be connected with the power station which will be built for the new Bloedel, Stewart & Welch Co. pulp mill under construction at Port Alberni.

Action Sought On Moving Of Cross

DUNCAN — Letters were received from the Duncan Chamber of Commerce and the Cowichan Branch Canadian Legion; at the city council meeting Tuesday night asking what had been done toward moving the Memorial Cross from its present location to the City Gardens.

The council has his matter under consideration, it was stated, and also the addition of a new base on which to place names of those who died in the Second Great War. As soon as labor can be obtained the work will be done.

Arrangements were made for the annual Poppy Day and service at the Memorial Cross Nov. 11.

Up-Island Students Receive Bursaries

The awarding of bursaries and a scholarship to three up-island students was announced today by the president's office of the University of British Columbia.

The Mildred Brock Memorial Bursary has been awarded to Jean M. Grunlund, Port Alberni, who is entering Third Year Arts, and the Faculty Women's Club Bursary to Barbro E. Grunlund of Port Alberni, also entering Third Year Arts. Both these bursaries are for $75.

LUXTON — Three new members were welcomed at a meeting of Luxton and Happy Valley Women's Institute Tuesday night, presided over by Mrs. A. Strathern.

A report of the recent institute conference was read by Mrs. C. A. Ramsfield. Mrs. D. Flatman also described highlights of the conference.

It was decided to send a hamper of toys, books and games to the Queen Alexandra Solarium for the Christmas tree.

The secretary-treasurer reported the institute's funds had been increased by $37.75 as a result of entering by the members at the fall fair. Mrs. A. Strathern and Mrs. A. Morrow were appointed as a refreshment committee for the Methosin Farmers' Institute November meeting.

The November roll-call will be answered by members bringing gifts for overseas.

Tag Days Granted By Duncan Council

DUNCAN — The City Council has granted permission to Cowichan Branch, Canadian Legion, and the Canadian National Institute for the Blind to hold tag days.

The Legion tag day will be Nov. 9, for the sale of poppies. The King's Daughters' Hospital W.A. has relinquished its tag day in favor of the Institute for the Blind, in view of the fact that the hospital drive for $30,000 was successfully completed, and only four tag days a year are permitted.

The City Council has been notified by B.C. Police Commissioner T. W. S. Parsons that the agreement for policing the city will terminate Dec. 31 and that a new agreement, involving increased costs, will be necessary.

Death Of Couple On Beach A Mystery

DANIA, Fla. (AP) — Sheriff Walter R. Clark of Broward County said today he was without a clue in the slaying of a pretty young woman and her handsome escort whose bodies were found early Wednesday on Dania beach.

He said four men were being held for questioning in connection with the slayings, which he termed a double murder, but that a search of the beach had brought no clue to light.

The bodies of 24-year-old Elaine Eldridge, daughter of a South Chatham, Mass., contractor, and Lawrence O. Hogan, her 23-year-old boy friend, were found with a single bullet wound in each. Their money and other personal belongings were untouched.

LET REASON PREVAIL

NOT ONLY THE GENERAL PUBLIC BUT also the student body at Victoria College will have learned with satisfaction that the Greater Victoria School Board has decided to ask for an interview with the Council of Public Instruction—which, of course, is the provincial government. Nor is it seriously to be supposed that the cabinet will refuse such a request. At the same time, and in the interests of all concerned, it is to be hoped that the controversy will not be permitted to get out of hand by imparting to it a species of sensationalism which neither helps matters nor contributes materially to a solution of the problem.

None but the unrealistic and unimaginative will seek to minimize the seriousness of the situation with which the institution at Craigdarroch is confronted. It is painfully apparent to the provincial government and the Greater Victoria School Board as well as to Dr. Ewing and his staff. But there are obviously certain conditions and circumstances which must be examined in an atmosphere of reason. Today's demonstration has given the young people most directly concerned an opportunity to let off steam. We have sufficient confidence in their intelligence, however, to believe that they will not permit this manifestation of exuberance to diminish their determination to make the best of a bad job until a remedy can be found. In the meantime, therefore, we repeat what we said in these columns yesterday that a solution—temporary or otherwise—will be found quicker if commonsense and cool heads are brought to the deliberations.

A GENERAL PROBLEM

THE EXTENT TO WHICH ABNORMAL conditions on this continent have overloaded the physical facilities of schools and colleges is graphically portrayed in the current issue of Life magazine. By picture and letterpress this publication indicates the hardships under which certain United States institutions are laboring in their efforts to care for students of centres swollen by wartime population shifts and the wave of veterans who have returned to renew their college careers. The total national registration, placed at 26,750,000, is declared to be the heaviest in American history. The influx of 500,000 veterans alone indicates the strain placed upon universities to which increasing numbers of high school graduates are going.

It will be understood that the extreme conditions now prevailing are emergent and will be of a relatively temporary nature in so far as the senior institutions are concerned. When the tide of student veterans recedes the buildings to which they have been admitted will be less cramped. On the other hand, prewar figures will furnish no safe index of future enrollment. Demands for higher education will continue and more students will seek academic qualifications above the high school graduation level. Wise communities will make provision for that demand.

The problem posed by the lower schools is of a different nature. In that category congestion arises largely from shifting populations. Where families were attracted to a city through wartime employment and have remained as settlers, they have naturally taxed facilities which could not be extended when materials were channeled to special wartime objectives. When dislocations of recent months are corrected, construction will overcome the deficiencies.

The accommodation issue confronting educationists falls into two main divisions. The immediate problem is that of relieving temporary congestion. Remedies can scarcely be expected to approach the ideal. The pictures in Life show some palliatives—trailer camps, circus tents, use of corridors, auditoriums and stadiums. In British Columbia, inelegant army huts are supplementing the architectural elegance of traditional university buildings. This is an emergency and the makeshift may have to do. But the more important aspect is that which concerns the future. That is one that calls for vision and long-range planning. It is one, moreover, which vitally concerns Victoria. Life magazine explains some of the United States' difficulties by noting building programs have been halted since 1941. Victorians look back over a quarter of a century to their last major addition to the school system.

QUITE REPRESENTATIVE

IN VIEW OF THE RESULT OF THE recent general election in Australia, it is probable that Foreign Commissar Molotov would hesitate to repeat his charge that Dr. H. V. Evatt, the southern Dominion's Minister of External Affairs, did not really reflect the views of his compatriots. Of course, the delegate from the Kremlin was speaking in the heat of the moment, and has no doubt forgotten all about it in the meantime. But the spokesman for the newly-endorsed Chifley government will be less than human if he does not assume an "I-told-you-so" attitude should he again be subjected to such a gratuitous slur on his authoritative voice. He could tell Mr. Molotov or any other representative of rule by dictatorship that he was the servant of a people who pride themselves on their privilege of being able to go to the polls to choose whom they will to conduct their domestic and external business.

To be sure, the slow process of counting the ballots, particularly the care required in distributing "preference" votes, may be causing even Mr. Evatt some concern as to the size of the majority the administration will enjoy in the next Parliament. As this is written, however, the supporters of Mr. Chifley have elected 38 out of a House of Representatives of 75—with three Independents usually counted in the governmental column—while most of the nine in doubt are reported to be leading by a margin that will eventually land them to the right of Mr. Speaker. The joint opposition, on the other hand, appears to have increased its representation in the lower chamber from 21 to 25. Delay in the final tabulation of the vote, incidentally, is occasioned by the fact that the tallies are close—with no concessions of results. These considerations notwithstanding, the election in its primary essentials proves that the Australian people are satisfied with their government, and that its spokesmen abroad need not apologize for the authority of their voice.

WHY DRIVE BUSINESS AWAY?

ONE OF THE MOST IMPORTANT PRE-requisites for Canada's progressive march into prosperity is her ability to do more business—more business among the Canadian people and more business with the outside world. And in every village, town and city of the Dominion this general rule would seem to us to hold good. Nor do we think the public as a whole will consent to any form of restraint which runs counter to popular interpretation of the basic needs of the country. Yet we in this capital city of British Columbia are faced with proposals which, in the broadest acceptance of the term, would seek to close the doors of certain retail establishments for one day in the working week. But there is evidently a doubt about the validity of such legal processes which seek to oblige the owner of this or that establishment to shut his doors in the face of his own better judgment and in direct contravention of obvious basic freedoms. And it seems to be forgotten that such establishments, in the very nature of things, have a definite responsibility toward the public which they are naturally anxious to discharge.

There is another important aspect to this store-closing controversy which will not be overlooked by those progressive Victorians who long ago realized that the economy of this community during many months of the year is substantially geared to the tourist dollar. The average visitor who comes to spend a holiday here, whether for a day or a month, does a good deal of shopping. The reputation of our stores has extended far and wide. Some may argue that a vacationist does not come to buy a lamb chop, get a hair cut, a suit of clothes, or a pair of shoes. Apart from the fact that this line of argument is palpably unsound, the tourist who visits Victoria—especially in these days of moving populations—more often than not is looking for an incentive to become a permanent resident. What is he to think of a city of the size of this which seems so satisfied with its place in the business realm that it can afford to pull down its commercial blinds for one whole working day in six? The answer is obvious.

BOURGEOIS IDEOLOGY

THE DEPARTMENT FOR PROPAGANDA in Moscow has recently drawn attention to the growing tendency of the Soviet stage to spread "bourgeois reactionary ideology and morality" and attempting to poison Soviet minds. Among the plays cited as an example of this dangerous and reprehensible enterprise is Mr. G. S. Kaufman's "The Man Who Came to Dinner," in which the inimitable "Monty" Woolley amused millions of movie fans when it was translated into pictures. If anything the play was a witty skit on the exaggerated importance of intellect over manners. In what way it could possibly be related to any type of reactionary ideology or morality is beyond the comprehension of the average mortal. Specifically this play is bracketed, with others by French and English writers, as an example of bourgeois mentality which is poisonous to the Russian people.

This incident, however, reveals the extreme care with which the Soviet Department for Propaganda superintends the life of the people. The stage, poetry, music and literature must obviously be treated as a means of political education. Taste is evidently a matter of ideological interpretation. Presumably any person who now laughs without official approval of the subject of his mirth is a bourgeois reactionary. Must we even take our "fellow-travellers" without a dash of humor? These are the people, incidentally, who glibly label all non-Communists as Fascists.

A PLEASANT PILL

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA APPLE, THE provincial Industrial and Scientific Research Council informs us, has qualities over and above the taste excellence of its juicy substance and the food value it provides. The British Columbia apple, tests have disclosed, possesses a characteristic that lends new vitality to those who eat it, and contains beneficial properties not enjoyed by such other highly advertised health elements as citrus fruits. It helps to produce growth in young animals, stimulates a higher use of food minerals, and bids fair to compete with certain of the vitamin pills in doing what the vitamin pills are supposed to do.

It is encouraging to find scientific research supporting and extending the justifiable claims to excellence put forward on behalf of the British Columbia fruit. And it will be reassuring to learn that there is at least a modicum of truth in the old saw about "an apple a day . . ."

HOW MUCH LUMBER AHEAD?

LUMBER is a difficult thing to obtain in Canada today, as every housebuilder has good reason to know. It may be scarce still a few years hence when the great stands of British Columbia timber, the richest in the nation and in the British Commonwealth, recede further and further into the hills.

When the British Columbia Legislature meets early in 1947 it will have to face what is actually the most fundamental economic problem in the zone bounded by the Rockies and the sea—the depletion of timber on which British Columbia largely lives and which supplies markets in many parts of Canada and overseas. To British Columbia, timber is like wheat to the prairies. It buys the products that British Columbians import from within Canada; it is one of our main Canadian items of export, with which we buy foreign goods, employing directly and indirectly an incalculable number of Canadians. What happens to the timber of British Columbia is thus far more than a provincial problem. It is a major factor in the prosperity of the nation.

BEFORE the provincial Legislature will come a report by Chief Justice Gordon Sloan who spent two years studying every aspect of the timber supply and its future utilization. In brief, Mr. Sloan finds an alarming prospect of depletion, especially in that key product of domestic use and export, the Douglas fir tree which grows to a height of 200 feet, clear of branches and knots, is easy to work, and of remarkable strength.

How much fir is left experts have been trying for years to estimate. It is relatively simple to calculate the number of trees standing on the coastal fir areas and their content of lumber. The question is what trees are accessible, how far logging can go back into the hills without impractical operating costs.

Some experts have thought that five years more of present cutting would exhaust the accessible stands. Mr. Sloan does not accept this pessimistic forecast but thinks that, with modern techniques and increased lumber prices, areas presently inaccessible can be logged during the next generation or so. He thinks there may be enough fir left to supply the present cut for 31 years but, of course, many logging companies will have used up their supplies before that time while others, with larger areas in reserve, will continue to cut them much longer.

THE BASIC fact is that Canada now can foresee in a relatively short time the end of the virgin Douglas fir forests and must turn to other species like hemlock, cedar and spruce, and then depend on a second growth of fir now in its early stages. It will be a long time before a new fir crop is ready for harvest, more than half a century, and even trees 60 years old—a practical minimum—will be relatively poor in quality and pitifully small in size compared to the giants which have been growing for two or three hundred years.

British Columbia's problem is many-sided. First it has to assure the growth of the new crop and this is by no means assured in many areas where frequent fires have destroyed the young trees and gravely damaged the soil. The control of fire is the first and most obvious problem. The second is replanting of areas which do not re-seed themselves. The third is the increasing use of hemlock, spruce and cedar, its manufacture into lumber of a quality which domestic and export markets will accept. The fourth is the reduction in the present appalling waste of timber, for in the British Columbia woods enough sizeable logs are often left by the loggers to supply the highest quality of lumber known in Europe. The fifth problem, and the key to all the others, is the cost of conservation, of fire fighting and replanting.

THIS LATTER is the problem now inescapably before the provincial government and Legislature. It has to decide whether it will spend enough money to protect the primary capital of the province, its forests. The government of British Columbia has undertaken such enormous expenditure on current account that it has insufficient money left for the real protection of its capital. It can continue to neglect this capital at its peril and the peril of Canada at large.

Sally In Bathing Suits

From the Ottawa Journal

A POSTER advertising toilet soap shows a drawing of a girl of perhaps five or six years standing in water up to her thighs and diligently scrubbing one arm. They call the child Sally, and Sally in the poster as displayed in eight Canadian provinces has no clothes on. She is portrayed in a side view with one arm extended.

In Quebec, the advertiser tells us, Sally has to wear a bathing suit, and the Quebec poster shows the pretty child covered to her neck but with her back bare to the waist. There, we are told, Sally is "conforming with Montreal's regulation No. 1025 which deals with 'posters, pictures, drawings depicting nudes or semi-nudes.'"

And that is why Sally wears a bathing suit in Hull but leaves it off when she crosses the bridge to Ottawa—Montreal's sense of the fitness of things is being upheld.

"It is essential to the idea of a law, that it be attended by a sanction . . . a penalty or punishment for disobedience . . ."

"Why has government been instituted at all? Because the passions of men will not conform to the dictates of reason and justice without constraint. Has it been found that bodies of men act with more rectitude or greater disinterestedness than individuals? The contrary of this has been inferred by all accurate observers of the conduct of mankind . . ."—Alexander Hamilton.

GLOBAL SURVEY

Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst

The United States delegation to the Atomic Control Commission seems to be in the position of the man who tried to give away a solid gold brick—nobody's going to fall for that gag.

The spectacle of a nation laying its minimum instead of maximum demands on the conference table at the outset, seeking both to clarify the issues and avoid haggling, apparently has the negotiators stumped.

Diplomats don't ordinarily do business that way. They can't believe that there isn't a bargaining point somewhere, and have spent many weary weeks looking for it.

When Bernard Baruch presented the United States control plan to the Atomic Commission it constituted the greatest con-

Victorians See Evidence Of Saanich's Progress

City officials and officers and members of the senior and junior Victoria Chamber of Commerce were given a first-hand view of Saanich Peninsula's many scenic attractions and a better picture of the growth in population and agricultural development that has taken place in the last few years, through a seven-hour tour of the district Wednesday.

Arranged by the Tourist Trade Group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, the tour was in the form of a caravan made up of a large glass-encased sightseeing bus and several cars. Headed by Mayor Percy George and Reeve A. G. Lambrick, there were 40 city and Saanich administration and business people on the tour of the 55-square-mile municipality with a population of 22,000.

In addition to seeing some of the results of Saanich's march of progress, the city delegation also learned from the north-end suburb's eight representatives the many desires for improvement of conditions for residents and the visiting public alike within the municipal borders.

CARAVAN TOURS LAUBED

At the luncheon held at the Bar-K Ranch, on the Mount Douglas highway overlooking the island-studded straits waters, all speakers—city and Saanich representatives alike—were in agreement that such tours were conducive to happier relations—through the molding of a better understanding—between the city and its suburban neighbor.

Councillor William Kersey, bus master of ceremonies on the microphone, got a chorus of "Here! here!" when he asked the party if they wanted more caravan tours in Saanich "because we have a lot more to show you."

While Councillor Kersey at the mike informed the group of the interesting features along a scenic route made richer in beauty with the liberal showing of autumn color in tree-foliage, there were periodical stops to give the party a closer view of various places and development achievements.

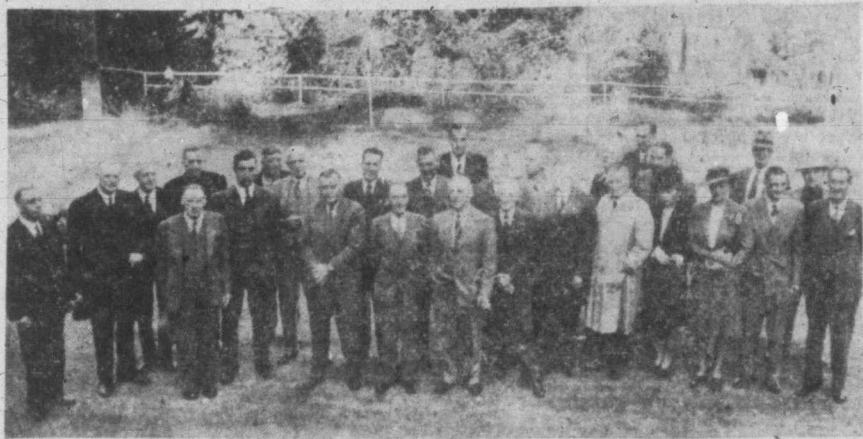

ISLAND'S BEST DAIRIES

Raper's Dairy on Burnside Road, considered among the island's most up-to-date, was among the first stops. This was featured by the 100-cow barn with machine milkers. At Growers' Wine Company plant, which has a capacity for 1,000,000 gallons of wines, the party—which included two business women—were rather amazed at the great quantity of 1,000, 5,000 and 10,000-gallon wooden tanks and barrels filled with maturing logana and grape wine, in the building. They sampled, a few wines. Later, deeper into Saanich, they saw the 80 acres of the company's loganberry plantings.

Councillor Kersey pointed to the modern, one-story school being constructed at Cordova Bay to handle the growing bay's young population.

THAT 'MISSING LINK'

A mile or so further on, where Sayward Road ends on meeting Martindale Road, the party was Those caravan personnel shown in this picture, centring around Mayor Percy George and Reeve Lambrick, are: J. E. Neely, chairman of the tourist trade group of the Chamber of Commerce; F. Riley, vice-chairman of the Saanich Board of Trade; Fred Norris, president-elect of the Junior Chamber of Commerce; C. J. Harrington, of the junior chamber; Maurice Atkins (Saanich), K. Breitschmidt, George Beck Sr., George Mowatt, J. Diron, G. I. Edgelow, Norman Foster, Ald. B. J. Gadsden, A. Reene, James S. Hall, L. Hafer (Saanich), Ald. F. G. Mulliner, Neil Pollock, George W. Robinson, M. C. Sands, W. A. Scott, Emerson Smith, C. M. Smith, W. O. Wallace (Saanich), Rev. D. M. Williamson (Saanich), R. J. Williams, W. P. D. Pemberton, T. told "here starts that 'missing link' which prevents a scenic waterfront drive from Victoria's breakwater around the whole length of the peninsula's coastline." To the end of Sayward where the Canadian National right-of-way road starts on Mt. Newton Road there is a stretch of about one and three-quarter miles of no-road area—or the "missing link," as W. O. Wallace, champion of this much sought-after connection, put it.

Robinson's seed farm on Brookleigh Road was next to be viewed in passing. The bus rolled through many acres of fertile small-fruit country before rolling to stop at Ed Maher's big farm off Stelly Cross Road. Here, it was learned, enough potatoes were grown annually to satisfy the Victoria market for three months.

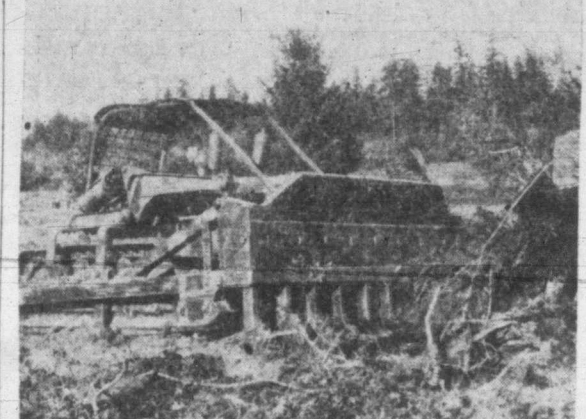

MODERN LAND CLEARING

At this farm the Victoria-Saanich contingent saw the Emergency Farm Labor Service in operation clearing farming land with a bulldozer. C. M. Smith, area superintendent of the service, explained the cheapness of the modern method in comparison to the old-time snail's pace, by-hand task.

Not long after there was a disembarkation at former Lieutenant-Governor Woodward's farm of large acreage off West Saanich Road.

MEET SIDNEY OFFICIALS

At Sidney the touring party was met by representatives of the newly-formed Sidney and North Saanich Chamber of Commerce: W. S. "Bill" Harrison, vice-chairman; Malcolm McIntosh, secretary, and Bert Smith. They told the group of their efforts to get the Dominion government to provide new dock facilities and a breakwater. Mr. Harrison pointed to the obvious state of disrepair the dock was in. He was of the opinion "this visit of yours is an indication of better things to come between Victoria and Saanich."

The 100-acre Woolridge bulb farm on the right of the ferry-slip road leading to Brentwood Bay was the last stop. Ray Woolridge explained the finer points of the business. "We have only 50 acres in bulbs, but the whole 100 acres is under cultivation." The firm also has property at Duncan.

No Sign Of End To Meat Rationing

OTTAWA (CP)—Prices Board officials said Wednesday night there is no immediate prospect of an end to meat rationing in Canada.

(In Toronto Wednesday the Evening Telegram published a report saying Finance Minister Isley would announce "later today" the end of meat rationing in Canada in 1947.)

Sources close to Mr. Isley said it was unlikely such a statement would come from him. He has gone to Portage la Prairie, Man., where he is to address a political gathering tonight.

A.F.L. Delegates Want Substitute For Regional Board

Regional War Labor Boards, charged during the war with holding wages down, should not be abolished until substitute boards have been set up to stabilize wages and prices, in the opinion of the Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council.

At a meeting of the council Wednesday night George Wilkinson, secretary, was instructed to forward all resolutions on the question to representatives for British Columbia.

The council was of the opinion Regional War Labor Boards may be abolished shortly. The council argued that British Columbia, having established the highest standards of working conditions in Canada, should not be jeopardized by releasing complete control to those who are not aware of the situation and may be included to reduce British Columbia's working standards to that of eastern Canada.

The Trades and Labor Council had previously taken the stand that labor legislation and administration should be returned to the provinces but there should be a national code governing minimum standards.

MAINTAIN SUBSIDY

Maintenance of the Dominion government's producer subsidy on milk, ended Sept. 30, by the provincial government, was recommended in a resolution to be forwarded to Premier John Hart.

The resolution, submitted by Harold Thayer from the Veteran-Labor Consultative Committee, suggested removal of the subsidy, which has resulted in a two-cent-a-quart jump in milk prices, would curtail the consumption of milk—a "must" food for health; and that those in low income brackets should not have this imposition forced on their children.

The council was told that following further research the Public Ownership League intended to publicize statistics showing how various cities throughout Canada have derived a substantial profit by operation of public utilities.

Affiliated unions will be informed by the council that they should contact their respective municipal officers calling for enforcement of by-laws in respect to Wednesday closing when such by-laws comply with the wishes of the required majority. Decision to take this action followed a request from the Barbers' Union for full support in enforcing the Wednesday Closing Act.

William Noble was seated as a delegate for the United Fishermen's Union.

WILL SPEAK HERE

The council was told that Sam Watson, member of the national executive of the British Labor Party, will address a public meeting at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium Oct. 29.

The secretary was instructed to forward a contribution to the Community Chest.

George Wilkinson and Charles Chivers gave comprehensive re-

"Where were you on the night of the 17th?"

"I thought I told you to keep away from here," smiled Bob.

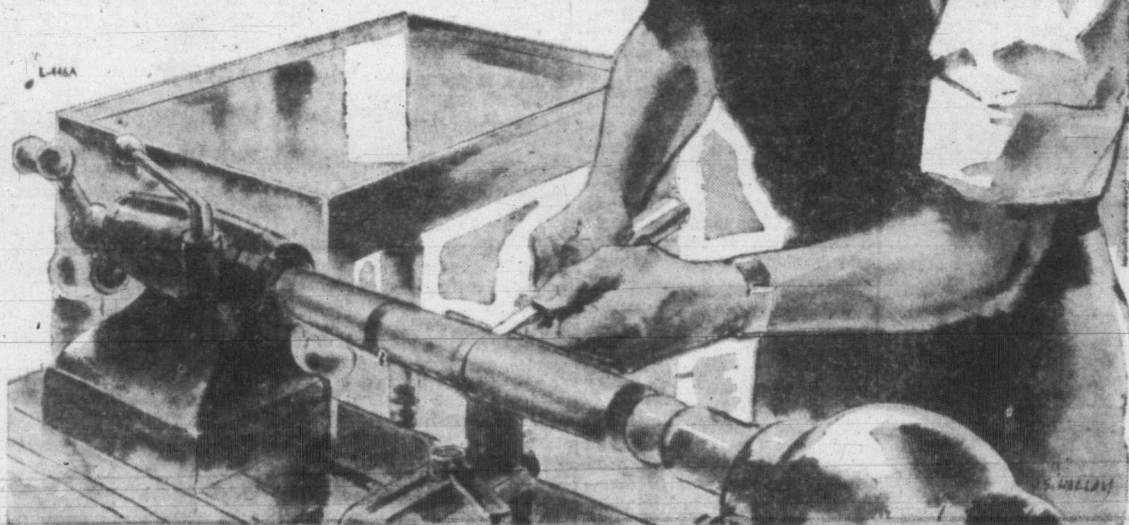

"My dear, I never see you any more, since you turned the cellar into a shop," protested Ethel. "If a cop were to ask me where you were on the night of the 17th I wouldn't even have to think. What a lovely table, Bob! Who's that for?"

"It was to be a surprise for your birthday, but you see what you get for snooping. I've put in every free night for three weeks on it, but I've never been so happy in my life. For years I figured I couldn't afford the tools and the lathe and stuff. But when we got down to a budget that looked after our life insurance and other essentials first, I saw I could indulge myself and do a bit of tinkering."

A man with adequate life insurance enjoys a freedom from worry that nothing else can give him. Premium payments call for systematic saving and budgeting. Once the future of his loved ones is secure, the head of a family can relax and derive pleasure from his hobbies.

Near you, is a life insurance agent. Ask him for advice in planning your future. It is good citizenship to own life insurance.

Britain Accepts Zaburin As Envoy

LONDON (Reuter) — The British government will not express a desire to have Georgi Zaburin replaced as Soviet ambassador to Britain, Foreign Undersecretary Payhew told the House of Commons Wednesday. Mr. Zaburin formerly served as ambassador to Canada.

Mr. Payhew told a questioner that the Royal Commission which investigated espionage activities in Canada reported "that the evidence before them was that those members of the Soviet Embassy in Ottawa who were engaged in improper and inadmissible activities operated in special sections of the embassy, the operations of which were quite distinct from the official and legitimate activities of the Soviet Embassy, and that the Soviet ambassador in Canada had no part in them."

Successful Tea — Under the auspices of the senior afternoon branch, Christ Church Cathedral W.A., a tea and sale was held at the Deanery last week. The president, Mrs. E. H. Bird, welcomed guests. Afternoon tea was served in the dining-room under the co-sponsorship of Mrs. Dwyer, assisted by Mesdames Slack, G. Howland, S. H. Partridge, Misses Rose Jones and Allenby. Mrs. Semple and Mrs. H. G. Lancaster presided at the tea tables. A home-cooking and produce stall was in charge of Mrs. J. Wriglesworth, assisted by Mrs. A. C. Clarke and Mrs. Claude Gardiner.

Raising Thanksgiving Dinner Turkeys Big Industry Now On Vancouver Island

A flock of 150 fine gobblers and hens, remainder of 1,000 turkeys from a March raising, will shortly be killed to supply the Victoria market.

Frank Eminson picks out the last feathers from a few hens, each weighing up to 20 pounds, before being shipped.

Three or four years ago if you had a turkey on your table for Thanksgiving the chances were that the bird had come from the prairies. But today it is more likely than not that your Thanksgiving turkey will come from one of several large Vancouver Island turkey farms for the industry has grown by leaps and bounds during the late war and postwar years.

And your turkey, because of the expansion of the industry here, and because the Vancouver Island industry had concentrated on producing the finest type of bird, will probably be of a higher grade and more juicy and tasty than any you could buy here a few years ago.

Turkey raising for C. E. Whitney-Griffiths of Metchosin, previously well-known as a raiser of fine sheep and cattle, now is a big business. This year he is slaughtering between 3,000 and 4,000 turkeys, to produce 20 tons of turkey meat valued at $20,000.

The Whitney-Griffiths' farm is a 100-acre plot, overlooking Race Rocks, the Strait of Juan de Fuca and the snow-clad Olympic mountains, some of which the owner himself cleared 40 years ago. Twenty acres of well-drained, gently sloping land, ideal for turkey-raising, is used for turkey runs.

MARKET WIDE OPEN
The turkey market in British Columbia now is wide open because, with good prices for grains, prairie farmers have concentrated on grain-growing, more British Columbians can afford to buy turkeys and meat rationing along with meatless days in restaurants has made unrationed turkey meat a popular substitute for beef, pork, veal and mutton.

In the United States turkey raising has grown during the last three or four years from a $100,000,000 to a $250,000,000 business annually, according to Mr. Whitney-Griffiths. Proportionately, a similar growth has taken place in Canada.

Turkey-raising on Vancouver Island, because of the dampness and other reasons, used to be considered a tricky business, but not any more.

"We have the finest climate imaginable for turkey-raising," said Mr. Whitney-Griffiths.

To raise turkeys successfully, he believes a farmer must be interested in his work and take precautions for sanitation.

Mr. Whitney-Griffiths in the past has bought his stock from a mainland producer as poult. They are Broad-breasted Bronze, select poult. Next season he hopes to start raising his own poult, using incubators capable of handling 3,000 eggs.

To hatch a turkey egg it must be incubated for 30 days.

EARLY CARE DELICATE

During the first three months the hours of work are unlimited. The birds are kept semi-confined in houses with attached sunporches with wire floors. When the birds are a little older they are released into green crops of oats, wheat, barley or sunflowers.

After the first three months, turkeys are no longer difficult to raise.

Mr. Whitney-Griffiths keeps feed and water before them all the time. The turkeys sleep on perches in the open, rain or shine. They grow rapidly, quickly fattening up for killing.

He kills the birds at the rate of up to 100 per day to supply contracts he holds with Victoria firms. His largest contract is with the Empress Hotel for which he supplies 25,000 pounds of turkeys annually.

Keep Oct. 29 open, Sam Watson is coming.

Food Consumption May Be Reduced

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians could get along on less food without losing anything in health or efficiency, the Canadian Council on Nutrition has decided.

The council Wednesday discussed the part Canada is playing in helping meet the world food shortage, but was undecided as to what level food consumption could safely be reduced. This matter was referred to a technical committee.

During the all-day session technical and educational committees were appointed, relations of the council to the World Food and Agricultural Organization were discussed and an outline was given by Dr. F. F. Tisdall of Toronto on the proposed Canadian Red Cross school meal program.

Dr. Tisdall outlined briefly the plans being made by the Red Cross in collaboration with the Canadian Medical Association to promote a study of several years to determine the effect of a daily school meal program on the health and efficiency of children.

Dr. Jean Webb, Fredericton, was appointed chairman of the educational committee, members appointed to work with her included: Mrs. T. L. Townsend, Birtle, Man. and Miss Helen McArthur, Edmonton.

The educational committee will plan an over-all educational pro-

Miss Hart Stresses Good Citizen Leads Well-Rounded Life

Miss Ellen Hart defined her conception of a good citizen in the opening address of the Women's Round Table at the City Hall Wednesday evening.

The first of a series of talks on "Knotty Problems for Women," last night's discussion was headed "Am I a Canadian Now?"

A good citizen, Miss Hart said, should be equipped to lead a well-rounded personal life, should understand the meaning of democracy in the country in which he or she lives, should believe in it and be ready to make sacrifices to maintain it.

Miss Hart felt that young Canadians are not as well equipped for citizenship as they might be.

"They have some training for productive work," she said, "and in normal times can earn a living. But they are not sufficiently well trained for enjoying leisure. They are not well equipped for co-operative living," she added, "and are not well prepared to play their part as world citizens."

"Like it or not," she emphasized, "we have to get along with our world neighbors, and at the moment we are not making a good job of it."

Touching briefly on the need for adult education, Miss Hart described the Peoples' High School of Denmark, established in the 19th century, for adults over 18 years of age, where the subjects most stressed are history and literature.

Following Miss Hart, Mrs. A. C. Ross, gave an instructive talk on the new Citizens' Act, passed by the Dominion government in May. Mrs. L. R. Harper acted as discussion leader. The president, Miss N. McKillican, was in the chair.

Activities Outlined—Plans for the year's activities were outlined at a meeting of the Junior Auxiliary of St. Joseph's Hospital. Mrs. Georgia Satchell, president, Mrs. Bernadette O'Connor was named chairman of the Dollar Fund which will open in November.

Nursery Schools Necessary Adult Education a Must Today

Miss Ailsa Braidwood, B.A., M.Sc., emphasized the need of nursery schools in any community where there are many young children, at a public meeting of the Victoria Nursery School Association in the Empress Hotel, Wednesday evening.

"One nursery school is a good thing and fills a part of the need," she said, "but the more nursery schools you can have, the better chance of bringing up your future citizens in the proper manner."

"Money half spent does a certain amount of good," she added, "but it can do some harm, too, when the job is not completed properly."

"You must have all the money you need," she said, "in order to accomplish your plans and to give adequate help to your parents as well as your children in this complicated age we live in."

Miss Braidwood gave a brief outline of work at St. Christopher's School for underprivileged children in New York, where she is a social service worker on the case work staff.

She spoke of the great need for adult education as part of a broad program in the proper upbringing of a child. "A child must have the best home life, protected, happy," she said, "if he or she is to grow into a normal, healthy young citizen."

Mrs. H. Tisdall presided and a vote of thanks to the young speaker was given by Mrs. C. McAllister.

This Cake Saves Fat And Sugar

Here is a sugar-saving chocolate cake that is rich enough for a party, and economical as well. It calls for only one-quarter cup of shortening and only one egg.

Economical Chocolate Cake—One and one-half cups sifted cake flour, one teaspoon soda, three-quarter teaspoon salt, one-quarter cup shortening, one cup sugar, one egg, unbeaten; two squares unsweetened chocolate, melted; seven-eighths cup sour milk, one-half teaspoon vanilla. (To sour fresh milk, add one tablespoon vinegar to each cup milk and let stand in warm place a few minutes).

Sift flour once, measure, add soda and salt and sift together three times. Cream shortening, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy.

Add egg and beat well; then add chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternately with milk, small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla.

Turn into two eight-inch layer pans which have been lined on bottoms with paper, then greased. Bake in a moderate oven 25 minutes, or until done.

Hungarian Chocolate Frosting—Two squares unsweetened chocolate, one-half cup confectioners' sugar, one tablespoon hot water, one egg, three tablespoons butter or other shortening.

Melt chocolate in double boiler, remove from boiling water, add sugar and water and blend; add egg. Add butter, one-third at a time, beating thoroughly after each addition.

Spread on cake while slightly warm. This will soften the frosting so that it will spread easily.

Here's a Tip—When cooking cauliflower, corn, rice and potatoes, try this to keep them white: add two tablespoons of lemon juice to one quart of cooking water.

Canned Apple Sauce—Wash apples, quarter and discard decayed portions. Cook until soft in covered pan with just enough water to prevent burning; press through strainer. Sweeten as desired. Pack while boiling hot into sealers to within one-half inch of top. Partially seal and process for 15 minutes in boiling water. Seal at once when removed from water and cool in upright position. Apple sauce may be canned in this way without sugar; when sealer is opened for use, sugar may be added to taste.

Meat Substitute—Peanut

Loaf. Two cups soft bread crumbs, one cup milk, two cups chopped peanuts, two eggs, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon paprika. Soak bread crumbs in milk. Add peanuts, slightly beaten eggs and seasonings. Turn into greased bread pan, set in pan of water and bake in moderate oven about 40 minutes, or until set and browned. Serve with tomato sauce.

Glazed Squash—Four cups squash, one teaspoon salt, one tablespoon brown sugar, one tablespoon honey, three tablespoons lemon juice, one teaspoon grated lemon peel, butter or well-rendered fat. Remove seeds and rind and cut into one-inch cubes. Place in shallow, greased casserole. Combine remaining ingredients and pour over squash. Dot with butter and cover. Bake in hot oven until squash is tender, about 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue baking until squash is glazed, about 10 minutes longer. Serves six.

Pickling Hints—Always use fresh vegetables. Use the best vinegar; cider vinegar has the best flavor but white vinegar gives better color. Blended vinegar combines the flavor and color. Soak in brine to draw out water and make pickles firmer. For crisp pickles, scald slightly but never cook. Keep pickles airtight in sterilized jars. Honey can be used in place of sugar. It gives extra spiciness to relishes.

Engagements

Announcements to appear under this heading will be accepted at the Times Advertising Department. Minimum charge $1.50 for 10 lines, and 15c for each additional line.

Mrs. Ida Wright, 2095 Oak Bay Avenue, announces the engagement of her younger daughter, Doris (Dorrie), to William Wilson Waugh, Nanaimo. The wedding will take place quietly at home on the afternoon of Oct. 12, 1946.

DOMINION THEATRE
 An all-comedy cast headed by James Stewart and Rosalind Russell is featured in "No Time For Comedy," now at the Dominion Theatre. Based on S. N. Behrman's popular stage success, the film tells a highly amusing story of what happens to a playwright when he falls under the influence of a siren blonde.

CAPITOL THEATRE
 In his first appearance as an actor, since he gave up his stage career to join the British army in World War I, director Edmund Goulding plays a small 'good luck' bit in Warner's "Of Human Bondage," now at the Capitol, starring Eleanor Parker, Paul Henreid and Alexis Smith.

Famous Landmarks In Atlas Thriller

Ninety per cent of the locales in Paramount's "The Blue Dahlia" now at the Atlas Theatre, will be readily identifiable to residents of Los Angeles, Hollywood and environs, as planned by John Houseman, producer; George Marshall, director, and Raymond Chandler, the writer.

The opening scenes with Alan Ladd and William Bendix, who co-star with Veronica Lake, were established in such familiar surroundings as the Hollywood bus station and the row of U.S.O. centres, canteens and other service-meccas on Cahuenga Boulevard.

YORK THEATRE
 There's a treat in store for lovers of stories of the perilous adventurous life of the Canadian Northwest Mounted Police in "Northwest Trail," which ends tonight at the York Theatre. An all-star cast, including John Littel, Bob Steele and Joan Woodbury, heads the picture.

Where To Go Tonight

Chamber Of Commerce Warned Of Canada's Risk From Future Wars

WINNIPEG (CP)—Canada runs a greater risk than most nations of becoming involved in any future international struggle, Mr. Justice T. C. Davis, former Canadian High Commissioner to Australia, told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce annual meeting here today.

"Our political associations, our geographical associations inevitably place this nation in such a position," Mr. Justice Davis said. "If we accept that fact then it must naturally follow that we are as much interested as any nation on the face of the earth that international policies shall be adopted and pursued which will eliminate the threat of war."

He suggested three separate factors as a framework for Canadian foreign policy:

1. Pursuance of a policy which would keep together in friendly association the nations which presently constitute the British Commonwealth of Nations.
2. A policy of continued friendship with the United States.
3. Every encouragement given by Canada for the successful operation of the United Nations organization.

D. C. McKenzie of Winnipeg, chief commissioner of the Board of Grain Commissioners, said the present world food situation was grave, and he pointed to Canada's position as an agricultural country as being of paramount importance if starvation throughout other parts of the globe was to be averted.

Wednesday night delegates heard Premier Stuart Garson of Manitoba warn that failure of the Dominion and provincial governments to reach a fiscal agreement would leave Canada open to an "ideological aggression directed against our economic and political system by socialist and totalitarian groups."

Mr. Garson said Manitoba offered "no apologies for its stand at the (Dominion-Provincial) conference, for it was the only province in Canada which accepted the Dominion proposals without any strings, not because they were perfect for Manitoba's needs, but because we thought it was infinitely preferable for the whole of Canada that they should be accepted rather than rejected."

Johnson Started In Musical Shows
 When Van Johnson did his song and dance numbers in the new musical, "Easy to Wed," now at the Royal Theatre, it was no novelty for the popular M-G-M star. For it was his work in New York musical comedies that brought him to Hollywood. He gained polish in vaudeville, then appeared with Mary Martin in the famous Rainbow Room. Broadway parts in "Too Many Girls" and "Pal Joey" followed and the film talent scouts closed in. "Murder in the Big House" was Johnson's first picture. "Two Girls and a Sailor" brought him into prominence.

Canadian, U.S. Army Co-operation Needed, Businessmen Told

WINNIPEG (CP)—A blunt warning that "aggressive forces are on the loose in the world" and that Canadian-U.S. military co-operation had become "a matter of irreducible necessity" was contained in an address delivered today by William K. Jackson, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

His address at the annual meeting of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, now in session here, was obviously directed at the expansion policies of Soviet Russia.

"A totalitarian empire, different in details but not in essence from the one we fought and defeated seems to be extending its hold over larger and larger areas," he said.

"What we hoped so eagerly would become one world has been severed into two worlds whose conflicting interest and ambitions make ominous headlines day after day."

"In these circumstances, neither your country nor mine can afford to relax its vigilance nor neglect its defences. What ever menaces one of us menaces the other in exactly the same measure."

For all its "faults and fumbings" the United Nations still holds the world's hope for permanent peace, and should be "supported," Mr. Jackson said.

"At the same time, as practical peoples in a time of danger we cannot and dare not evade the realities. We must face up to the harsh truth that aggressive forces are on the loose in the world."

If a third world war is permitted to develop, he said, the "precious immunity" North America enjoyed in the First and Second Great Wars would not long exist.

The element of restraint against use of bacteriological weapons arising from the danger it might hit the attacking country as well would not apply, he said.

Mr. Jackson emphasized his belief in the desirability and possibility of great economic and cultural co-operation between Canada and United States.

That co-operation would be an ample to the world of the valuable returns from free enterprise as a means to betterment and happiness of the people.

PLAZA THEATRE

Stewart Granger, the much-in-demand romantic English actor, has the important role of Apollonius in the film, "Caesar and Cleopatra." Vivien Leigh and Claud Rains are starred in this Gabriel Pascal production which is now at the Plaza Theatre.

St. John's—A scavenger hunt was held by St. John's A.Y.P.A. with president Eileen James, in charge. John Pettit led the winning team. Eight members of the A.Y.P.A. will attend the annual conference at Chilliwack this week-end. Next meeting will be held Tuesday at 8 in the auditorium.

London Rubber Mart Plans To Reopen

LONDON (AP)—Plans for reopening London's Mincing Lane rubber market—once the world's biggest free market in rubber—were reported proceeding apace today in the wake of a governmental announcement that international control of rubber will end Dec. 31.

Informed sources said plans being negotiated between the Rubber Trade Association and the Board of Trade to re-establish the market probably would permit only spot sales, thus banishing speculation.

Russian Spies Are Clever—Canadian Police Are Baffled

One of the major problems facing the Royal Canadian Mounted Police is: "Are the Russians still operating an extensive spy ring in Canada?" The dismaying truth is that no one knows whether the Net is still at work. The government named at Royal Commission of two Supreme Court judges to investigate the Russian Net, and after five months of probing, in which they interviewed 115 witnesses and compiled a report, 6,000 typewritten pages long, Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in the House of Commons they did not know whether the Russian Embassy had ceased its illegal activities. The Commission's report said ominously: "The Russians may still have" undercover agents at work on this continent.

"How Soviet Spies Operate" is an article you would be well advised to read. You'll learn the truth of Canada's recent roundup of the Russian spy ring. This story appears in Liberty Magazine of Oct. 19, now on sale at your favorite dealers.

Defence Minister To Visit Victoria

Defence Minister Douglas C. Abbott is scheduled to visit Victoria about Oct. 26 on a two-day visit, R. W. Mayhew, Victoria M.P., said today.

Mr. Abbott is expected to spend about a week on the B.C. coast, Mr. Mayhew said, adding he would have further details later of the proposed activities of Mr. Abbott during his visit here.

Only 134 Soldiers Now In Detention Barracks

Only 134 soldiers are serving sentences in military detention barracks now, according to an announcement by the National Defence Department.

All military detention barracks formerly run by Canadians overseas have been closed, but there are 14 soldiers under sentence still in civilian custody overseas, the announcement said. However, it is expected all will have been returned to Canada shortly.

Constitution Changes Needed To Provide Security, Says McGeer

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senator G. G. McGeer said in a radio address Wednesday night revision of the Canadian constitution is necessary to protect "constitutional security."

"Other than the power of the general electorate to elect the government at election time, the Canadian people are wholly without constitutional security against the action of any party which may control the government of the day," he said in speaking over Vancouver station CKWX.

Senator McGeer traced the events leading up to what he called the loss of constitutional security. He went back to the Statute of Westminster, passed in 1931, under which the provinces assumed their powers under the constitution could not be changed except with their concurrence.

SWEPT ASIDE

"All such assumptions now have been swept aside," he said, by an amendment to the British North America Act this year which changed membership in the House of Commons and the relative basis of representation from the provinces.

"By automatically accepting a resolution of the Canadian parliament to amend the constitution, the British parliament has completely divorced itself from all responsibility with regard to the rights of the provinces and minorities once thought to be safe simply because they were set out in an act of the Mother of Parliaments."

"The power to amend the Canadian constitution is therefore centralized in the party in power in Ottawa. Consequently the ultimate control over the local affairs of the people in the provinces has now been transferred from our provincial legislatures to the Parliament of Canada."

Senator McGeer said this "vital and drastic change means there is no longer any constitutional security left guarding the rights of minorities in Canada."

"In no other way than by revision of the constitution will Canadians enjoy the constitutional securities which are essential to the continuance of the federal union established by the federation of the Canadian provinces."

"Otherwise, our constitutional security will be left to the mercy of the expediency of party politics."

Handicapped Persons Fill 10,553 Jobs

Federal Labor Department figures showed today that between September, 1945, and July, 1946, handicapped persons in Canada filled 10,553 jobs, and of this total, 2,863 jobs were filled by women.

These figures include 3,667 ex-servicemen and 185 ex-servicewomen.

Of the placements made by the Special Placement Section of the National Employment Service, 20 positions were filled by persons disabled by double amputations; 174 by persons totally blind, and 415 by persons totally deaf.

Many Attend Senator Green's Funeral Service

Dominion and provincial government representatives and a host of masonic friends were among the 1,000 who attended the funeral service of Senator R. F. Green at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Wednesday afternoon.

Conducted by J. V. Fisher, master of St. Andrew's Lodge, the late senator was accorded full masonic burial service. Last remains were laid at rest in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery.

F. E. Winslow, Waldo Skillings, Charles F. Earle, Robert A. Wootton, Col. W. J. Holmes and Walter E. Newton, Penticton, were the active pallbearers. Honorary pallbearers were: Senator J. H. King, representing the Dominion government; former senator G. H. Barnard, Dr. S. J. Willis, E. W. McMullen, Dr. Eric Boak, James Mayor, George McBeth and A. C. Burdick.

"Nearer, My God, to Thee" and "Abide With Me" were the hymns sung.

The House of Commons was represented by Howard Green, M.P. for Vancouver South and nephew of the late senator; R. W. Mayhew, M.P. for Victoria and Maj. G. R. Peakes, V.C., M.P. for Nanaimo.

Premier John Hart and Finance Minister Herbert Anscomb represented the provincial government.

Teletypesetters Used In Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Second newspaper in Canada to use teletypesetters, the Vancouver Daily Province put three of the machines in operation Wednesday.

The new system eliminates manual operation of linotype machines and allows continuous operation at maximum capacity.

Printers of the Province, members of the International Typographical Union (A.F.L.), have been on strike since June 5. The union demands that all Southam newspapers in Canada sign agreement recognizing I.T.U. rules. The Province is a member of the Southam group.

In announcing operation of the teletypesetters, the Province said: "One man can tend three linotypes operating automatically where three men were required before at a lower average rate of output."

The operator uses a keyboard, much like a typewriter keyboard, to "punch" copy, the letter characters being punched on a perforated tape which is run through a special attachment placed on the linotype machine.

The system, in use for a number of years in some Scottish newspapers, was first used in Canada by the Winnipeg Free Press.

The Vancouver Daily Province resumed publication of normal daily editions some time ago after a suspension of several weeks caused by the printers strike.

Determined To Get Elk Lake Water

"We want that Elk Lake water. We need it and we are going to get it, even if we have to yell our heads off," said Fred Riley, vice-president of the Saanich Board of Trade, in requesting the co-operation of Reeve A. G. Lambrick in this direction while speaking at Wednesday's luncheon stop during the Victoria Chamber of Commerce caravan tour of Saanich.

The need for the lake water, he said, was very great in the rural areas of Saanich. He told of people being forced to get drinking water in buckets from the lake.

Sisters Comb Veteran Hospitals In Search Of Missing Brother

TORONTO (CP)—Two California sisters who refuse to believe their brother, Lieut. Robert A. Tunnell, died in battle, moved on today in their untiring search of Canada's 47 veterans' hospitals on the strength of a tip a wartime buddy had seen Tunnell somewhere in Canada, broken in body and using an assumed name.

Already Mrs. Helen Churchman of Alameda, Calif., and Mrs. Zelma Somma of Eureka, Calif., have talked to all the patients in 25 hospitals. They left for Hamilton today and from there plan to turn westward. Their brother enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in Edmonton and they think he may have returned there.

They have offered a $1,000 reward for information leading to their brother.

"We want to take him home," they said. "If he can't go or if he doesn't wish to go, we will move with our families wherever he is."

TRAINED IN CANADA

Tunnell, son of J. V. Tunnell of Eureka, Calif., left Humboldt State College in California in 1941 to join the air force in Edmonton. He received his wings at Saskatoon, took advance training in eastern stations and at Summerside and Charlottetown, P.E.I., and then left for Great Britain, where he served as second pilot in a Halifax bomber. Later he transferred to the United States Army Air Forces.

Lieut. Tunnell and a photographer, Sgt. Bud Gunney of Washington, D.C., left a British base Sept. 18, 1944, in a stripped-down Mosquito bomber on a mission whose nature still is a top secret. They wore civilian clothes and left behind their regulation identity tags. Both men failed to return. The United States War Department reported them missing, then—a year later—presumed dead.

That was the last anyone heard of Tunnell until a United States serviceman, a boyhood friend of the missing flier, hitch-hiked on vacation through central Canada. He happened to visit a military hospital and in one ward saw a thin, emaciated patient with both legs amputated and both arms in splints. It was not until the patient called to him that he recognized him as Bob Tunnell.

USES ASSUMED NAME

The patient said he was so badly injured that he did not want to be a burden to his family and the word on Mrs. Churchman, one of Tunnell's sisters. She in turn told her father and her other sister, Mrs. Somma. By mail and telegram they started their search and authorities in Ottawa and Washington co-operated.

So far they have sought in vain. But they are going on in the faith that somewhere they will recognize their slender, six-foot-two brother with brown hair and blue-grey eyes—confident that their faith will surpass his great courage.

41 B.C. Policemen Get First Long Service Medal

Forty-one officers of the B.C. police will display a new ribbon on their tunics starting Nov. 1. They have been awarded the Provincial Police Long Service and Good Conduct Medal, the first medal of its kind to be struck by the provincial government.

Ribbon of the new award is myrtle green with two longitudinal sand-colored stripes near the edges. It will be worn subordinate to all other British decoration ribbons.

The sterling silver medal itself, made by a Vancouver firm, bears the coat-of-arms of the province and the year of Confederation, 1871, on one side. On the other is a reproduction of the police crest with the inscription "For Long Service and Good Conduct."

Qualification for the award is 20 years' service with an unblemished record in the last 10. Provision is made for war service when members rejoined the force within three months of discharge from the services.

Retired officers who meet the qualifications will be granted the medal on application.

Local and island members of the B.C. Police receiving the medal include Commissioner T. W. S. Parsons, Superintendent G. A. Hood, Deputy Superintendent J. P. M. Hannah, and Inspectors Robert Owens, Roger Peachey, M.C., Cecil Clark and C. K. Mackenzie; Detective Sergeant Carl Ledoux, Sgt. C. C. Jacklin, Chief Clerk Evan Patterson, Assistant Chief Clerk Thomas Kennelly, Senior Clerk C. V. Embleton and Armourer Robert Marshall, all of Victoria; Sub-Inspector J. Russell and Constable M. Martin, Nanaimo; Sgt. W. J. Hatcher, Courtenay; Sgt. S. Service, Constable P. T. Hutchinson and Constable J. M. Green O.B.E., Port Alberni.

John Strohm's Great Word And Picture Story Of The PEOPLE Behind The IRON CURTAIN

Fourth-Of Six Uncensored, Unbiased Dispatches

BY JOHN STROHM

(World Copyright by NEA Service, Inc., and John Strohm. Reproduction in whole or in part prohibited.)

KIEV, U.S.S.R.—Can this be the Ukraine? Before the war these green and amber fields were claimed to be the most widely mechanized farm area in the world. Where are the huge crawler tractors you'd seen pictured, pulling giant combines across limitless vistas of the Soviet bread-basket? Before me stretched scenes straight out of the Bible. Barefoot women swung cradles, scythes with a wooden frame to catch the sheared grain stalks. Other women stooped to cut the grain a few straws at a time with sickles. They bound the bundles by hand.

Men and women threshed with a flail, whipping out the grain with a jointed stick.

There were a few reapers, crude contraptions like Cyrus McCormick's No. 1 Model, which cut the grain but did not bind it. That again was the job for the stolid Soviet women who gathered the grain, tediously fashioning a tie of twisted straw, and bound it into a bundle.

On one 200-mile jaunt through the heart of the Ukraine you don't see a single combine at work, although the harvest is in full swing. You don't get close enough to a working combine during two months of harvest travel even to get a picture.

"The Nazis pretty well cleaned us out," said the agronomist for the province of Kiev, as we jeered along the dusty road. He pointed to a crew of women, their cradles swinging in unison.

"Before the war, 90 per cent of our grain was cut by machine. This year more than half of it will be cut by hand."

The Ukrainian Republic, a little over three times the size of Illinois, lost 24,000 combines and 56,000 tractors, thus forcing the farmers back to the primitive implements they had been steadily discarding since the Revolution.

A team of oxen lumbered by, drawing four drums of fuel for the machine tractor station. "How much are those oxen worth?" I asked, a bit set back at the sight of oxen being hand maidens to tractors.

"They're golden. We lost 90 per cent of our horses and 80 per cent of our cattle in this region. So there is no price on oxen, anymore than you'd put a price on a loaf of bread you needed to keep from starving."

A farmer and his wife were taking some collective farm produce to market. They were asleep on a clump of hay on the wagon—after all, the horse knew the way. But the horse was obviously no friend of motor vehicles. When we approached, he jumped the ditch and tipped the cart over. Everywhere I went in the Soviet Union except in Moscow, the horses shied at our car.

My companion pointed to the nearby forest. The Germans had cut all the trees a hundred yards back from the road as protection against being surprised by the Partisans who hid there and ambushed Nazi columns.

"About the only pigs left in the Ukraine are in those forests," he said. "Wild pigs—we hunt them with dogs."

Cobblestones Give Way To Sand, Then Dirt

The cobblestone road out of Kiev soon gave way to sand and then to dirt—good black dirt any farmer likes to have on his farm, but not on his road or his face. "You will take some of our good Ukrainian soil home with you, yes?" the agronomist laughed as our faces became thick with dust.

Piles of rock along the road had been there since before the war. They were just getting around to building the road. He corrected himself. "No, our 'visitors' are going to build the road—they came to the Ukraine, so we're inviting them to stay and we're giving them a job."

The "visitors" were thousands of German prisoners toiling along the road. Some sat and laboriously pulverized the stones with a hammer. Others spread the crushed rock on the road bed. Still others shaped the larger stones for making a cobblestone surface.

Some of the Germans were barefooted, some had rags tied over their feet, and none looked exactly like a conqueror in his ragged uniform. But they were as well dressed as the Russian road crews.

"How do you feed them?" I asked a road guard, with a tommy gun slung over his shoulder. "They get the same rations we do," was his answer.

We passed many women with milk and cheese and vegetables slung on shoulder yokes, trudging wearily to market. We saw them lying in the grass by the side of the road, resting, hoping against hope for a truck to come their way.

"Before the war we had buses. Now, if they can't get a ride, they walk. Sometimes 10, sometimes as far as 20 miles to get their produce to market," a Ukrainian told me.

Collective farmers who live near the big city markets can get such fancy prices as $2 a pound for the tomatoes they grow on their private plots, or up to $1.25 a quart for milk from their cow, and 50 cents for an egg. But here's the rub: This privately grown produce can be marketed only by the owner—that's to prevent speculation, an official explained. So that's why 25 women will start out at 3 a.m. on the 20-mile hike to market, instead of sending one cart-load of produce. And if a collective farm isn't within walking distance of the market, it usually must make some deal with a government agency at a considerably lower price. The Russians need trucks and roads to drive them on, just as American farmers did 30 years ago.

Everywhere the Ukrainians were busily at work. I was struck with the energetic rural reconstruction. Even at the height of harvest (and sickles take a lot more time and people than combines) new houses were going up in practically every village we visited.

"To replace those burned by the Fascist beasts," one of the builders said.

It's not an uncommon sight in the Ukraine to see community construction like the barn-raising days of early America. The women and girls, their skirts held high, mix great gobs of mud and straw with their feet. The men make a lace network of branches, and then apply the mud—the reinforced concrete idea, but with different materials.

"Is that house painted?" I asked incredulously, because a paint salesman would soon starve in the Soviet Union.

It was a neat, white home, thatched with straw. The farm chairman explained it wasn't paint—it was a white clay which they used to whitewash the building. They do it twice a year, and there's a lot of competition between the neighbors. Some villages look as if they had just gone through a paint-up spruce-up week.

"They tell us we have the prettiest farm houses in the Soviet Union," he said with pride.

The farm chairman invited us to have a "cup of tea." The table was laden with cold meats, cheeses and hard-boiled eggs. I didn't even need their polite urgings to eat heartily. Just when I was beginning to feel well-fed, they cleared the table—and brought in the soup, the first course in a collective farm banquet.

On either side of me was a farmer whose instructions must have been to keep my plate well filled. Every time a dish of raspberries or boiled potatoes or beef came our way, they pushed half of the contents off on my plate. A long towel rested across our laps, a sort of community napkin.

I stuffed and stuffed and then they brought in the main course—a couple of suckling pigs, shaved and roasted! Somehow I staggered through and finished off with fresh cherries dipped in honey, with salted cucumbers on the side.

They told me: "If you don't like cucumbers, you're not Russian!"

At this "cup of tea," obviously set up for the visitor, the host brought out the inevitable vodka. The farm chairman toasted the friendship of America and the Soviet Union. I toasted the spirit of the women who were doing the job with cradle, sickle, hoe and flail.

As we chatted, the women whetted their blades. I complimented them on the spirit with which they swung their cradles when they didn't have combines, said I was going to tell their story to the women of America.

One of them spoke up. "Then tell them too that we need bread—we don't have enough to eat."

I pointed to the field of ripe grain in surprise.

Ukrainians Seem Unafraid To Talk

"Yes, but we don't get any of it," she answered.

The Ukrainian people were more outspoken than any other groups I met. They weren't afraid of an NKVD man listening over their shoulders, as many Russians seemed to be.

(Recent news dispatches tell of a purge among collective farm leaders in the Ukraine. While I was in the Ukraine the newspapers were complaining about the lack of political leadership, pointing out that 7,000 collective farms in the Ukraine had no Komsomol or Young Communist organizations. One said, "We must stuff off the boredom and apathy which prevails.")

BREAD WAGON AND GOLDEN OXEN—These workers are returning to a Ukrainian state farm headquarters with a load of black bread they got at a "bread factory" in town. People often sell or trade their ration bread for 25 times the price they paid for it. Just as golden as the bread are the oxen that pull the wagon in this region where 90 per cent of the horses, 80 per cent of the cattle, were war casualties. Trucks and roads to drive them on are a rarity in rural Russia.

The farm agronomist, a 27-year-old woman graduate of the agricultural college, was more practical. Her toast: "To a bigger and better crop next year."

The Ukraine crop wasn't so good this year. Effects of the war are still a big factor because scarcity of machines means poor soil preparation. But that isn't all. One of the biggest bugaboos of the Soviet farmer generally is the unpredictable climate. It is either too hot or too cold, too wet or too dry.

Desert Winds Play Havoc With Crops

The Ukraine, which we commonly assume as being a black soil paradise, has its troubles. Winds from the Central Asiatic desert periodically play havoc with the crops. One of two "good crop years" out of five is about all they expect. And this was a drought year.

They thought their grain crop wouldn't be much more than 60 per cent of normal. The Soviet Union as a whole may get a yield of between 11 and 12 bushels. That's a guess. All Soviet farm statistics are as secret as atomic plans.

Drought was one reason the Kremlin gave in explaining why bread rationing could not end this year.

Two women were swinging cradles in a wheat field. One was barefooted, the other wore ill-fitting men's shoes. Each had to cut 1.1 acres a day to earn a labor-day's work. That kept them busy from dawn until dark, a long day in the Ukraine where in summer it gets light at 3 a.m. and you can still read a newspaper out doors an hour before midnight.

As we chatted, the women whetted their blades. I complimented them on the spirit with which they swung their cradles when they didn't have combines, said I was going to tell their story to the women of America.

One of them spoke up. "Then tell them too that we need bread—we don't have enough to eat."

The government is doing all it can to increase crop yields through seed selection stations such as the one at Mironovka where they developed the famous wheat hybrid, Ukrainka.

We visited a machine-tractor station. A few workmen were hewing timbers. Another couple were sawing boards—one on top of the log which rests on a high platform, the other underneath. A rusty crawler tractor sat under the tree.

The enemy had destroyed the machinery it didn't cart off. The M.T.S. saved only 12 of its 68 tractors, and lost all of its 27 combines. It now has 40 tractors in use, keeps them going 20 hours a day.

"In our country we keep tractors working much more than you do in America. Therefore, we don't need so many," the director said defensively.

These machine-tractor stations were established by the government to keep the tools of production concentrated in the hands of the state. Example: A collective farm cannot own a tractor or a combine—only the M.T.S. can own these tools. A collective farmer cannot own a horse, although the farm can.

"How does the M.T.S. work?" I asked the director.

"We are an agency of the Ministry of Agriculture, and we rent our machines to the collective farms. Rent is based on yields."

"For example: If wheat makes 9 bushels to the acre, then the charge for plowing the ground is 20 pounds an acre; for seeding, 3.6 pounds; for cutting, 9 pounds. But if wheat makes 25 bushels an acre, the charge for plowing is 135 pounds an acre, for seeding, 22 pounds, and for cutting, 53 pounds."

All rental fees are paid in kind. The M.T.S. was another method by which the government could insure a steady supply of grain and other crops coming from the farms to the cities.

Some Americans in Moscow had said, "It's impossible to get into a Russian home." But I visited in several. Once at 10 p.m., after a visit to farms, we were preparing to start the four-hour, 80-mile trip to Kiev. The county chairman insisted that we drop by his home for a brief visit.

He was a Party man, and he had never had "the honor of having Americans visit" his home. It was a pleasant place with electric lights, a piano and many flowers. His wife and attractive 18-year-old daughter brought us fruit compote made of grapes.

He told us his father was a peasant on the estate of a big landowner before the Revolution, with only 84 square yards of land he could call his own. He had started work in a factory and had joined the party in 1927. He came up through the ranks and was put in charge of 18 collective farms in 1935. Now he had been "elected" chairman of the county and had 41 collective farms, a state farm, and two machine-tractor stations under his direction.

Nazi Looters Even Took Brass Doorknobs

The Ukraine was real booty in the eyes of the Nazis, and they went after it systematically.

Private Enterprise

MOSCOW—John Strohm found that private enterprise still exists in the Soviet Union. Some examples:

A teen-age boy is a goat-herd. Every day he takes the milk goats of 20 neighbors out to pasture along the highway. He charges each goat owner 100 rubles a month. That makes 2,000 rubles ($160) a month for herding goats. A school teacher earns only one-fourth of that.

A chauffeur, driving a state car, picks up a customer looking for a taxi in Moscow. His charge, 25 rubles, which goes into his pocket.

Something goes wrong with the radio in the embassy apartments. The electrician who was called makes the call "after work" and pockets 30 rubles.

A Russian needs a new roof for his porch. Two carpenters do the job after hours with hand-hewn shingles for 1,000 rubles, which goes into their own pockets.

Similar work done "in hours" goes to the government, which pays a fixed sum to the workmen.

"They took the brass doorknobs off our government buildings, before they burned them," said a Kiev official.

"They stabled horses in the Polish Catholic church," said a priest sadly.

"They stripped the bronze off the tombs," said a caretaker at the cathedral.

But the old monk, his eyes misty, told the most heart-breaking tale. The Germans tried to peel the gold leaf from the dome of the famous 11th Century church. Then, two months after they had occupied the city of Kiev, they blew up the church.

"Our government has appropriated 26 million rubles (more than two million dollars) for its restoration," the old monk said. "But it can never really be restored."

"My mama works," said little Anna. Many mamas work in the Soviet Union, in the fields on the roads, in the factories. A casual visitor gets the impression they are doing three-fourths of the work. Their children are kept in nurseries.

Anna was a cute little five-year-old, who with 125 other boys and girls stayed in this nursery from 7 in the morning to 7 at night. The children, from three and a half to seven years old, are then picked up by their parents on their way home. That is, all but 660 of them—60 of them lost one or both parents in the war. Parents pay on a sliding scale—according to their salaries.

Small groups were eating at little tables under the trees, "Dobredin" (good day) they chorused when they saw us—and without prompting. One forlorn little fellow was eating by himself.

He was being punished, one of the little boys informed us. "He spit on Pavel."

The boys were making a big battlement in sand. Its name, "Stalin." Others were building footstool, of wood, using hammers or even wooden blocks to pound. "The Germans took most of our tools," the director explained.

Each child has his own little corner of the garden to weed and to water. On the shower bath walls were color illustrations of Little Red Riding Hood and the Three Little Pigs.

The woman director took us upstairs. She wanted us to see one of the nursery rooms. There on the walls were stork and animal pictures painted in gay colors. But German soldiers had scrawled lewd drawings of nudes among the storks.

Quickly and naturally, the boy picked up the knife and went through the entire mumble-peg routine. I had learned it at a one-room country school in Illinois. He even had some variations I'd bet our kids would be glad to learn.

I saw little girls playing hopscotch. I saw boys with sling shots. Others had marbles. Kids of the world are pretty much the same—it's when they get grown up that they change.

Vodka toasts, like campaign oratory, usually go in one ear and out the other. Before I flew from the Ukraine to the Caucasus, I heard one toast by a government official which stuck with me:

"You have seen the destruction we have suffered. You have seen us working with cradles, with sickles and with flails. We want you to come again when we have put away these things. Some of your people say we want war. When you go back won't you tell them—how can we possibly want war now when there is so much for us to do at home?"

AT 80, STILL A BREADWINNER—This 80-year-old man earned 360 "work days" on a collective farm in Byelorussia, where the farm's workers received 1.2 kilos of grain, 6 kilos of potatoes, 1.5 kilos of hay, and 71 kopeks per labor day. The workers voted to leave the money in the collective treasury to be used for rebuilding the farm.

HOME FROM THE FIELDS—Her cradle over her shoulder, this Russian woman returns to her home at the end of the day. After a full day's work in the fields, she will get her children from the nursery, cook supper, then fall into bed exhausted.

On the way home from an auto trip into the country, our car, a liberated German sedan made for the Hitler autobahns, broke down on the bumpy road. While the chauffeurs fixed it, we sat on the bank. I coaxed a 12-year-old boy to come over, and to hold his attention, I tossed my knife in the air to show him a game I had played as a kid—a mumble-peg, we called it. The knife would not stick in the ground.

Quickly and naturally, the boy picked up the knife and went through the entire mumble-peg routine. I had learned it at a one-room country school in Illinois. He even had some variations I'd bet our kids would be glad to learn.

I saw little girls playing hopscotch. I saw boys with sling shots. Others had marbles. Kids of the world are pretty much the same—it's when they get grown up that they change.

GOOD news for the football followers of Victoria was an announcement today by Charlie Falconer, one of the committee in charge of the United club in the Coast League, that George Payne, Noel Morgan and Alan Reside are signed members of the squad. "These boys have been on the roster of the United for some time but have not played owing to the fact that they have been unable to get out for training sessions and are not in condition for intercity competition," Falconer said. "However, within the next few weeks all three will be ready for action and the presence of these veterans will certainly bolster our club."

IN further discussion of the United prospects for the season Falconer stated he felt confident Victoria would have a strong well-balanced eleven in the intercity circuit by the time midseason was reached. "We have a large number of young players in the line-up and it is going to take a little time to weld them into a smooth-working combination," he said. "Another important factor is that we have a happy team and before the end of the campaign will have 14 or 15 of the best players in the city anxious to play football and eager to win." Falconer also wished to make it clear the United club was now receiving the fullest co-operation from all clubs in the Victoria and District League.

OFFICIALS of the Interhigh School Athletic Association are to be congratulated on the decision to limit the seasons on various sports in order to allow their young athletes to try all sports without engaging in too heavy a program at the one time and thus endangering their academic work. In announcing the new policy, Hugh Farquhar, president of the association said: "By allowing a boy to try his hand at all sports in one school year, we feel that it will give him an opportunity to see which sport he likes best and will concentrate on when he leaves school. The school years are the formative ones in a boy's life and by offering such a program we are contributing to the best of our advantage as far as his athletic activities are concerned."

Mustangs Sharpen Up For Battle Monday With Fast Meralomas

Holding down second spot in the Big Four by virtue of one win and one loss in their two starts, the Victoria Mustangs will play host to the Vancouver Meralomas on Monday afternoon at Royal Athletic Park. Game time is 2:30.

After winning their opening game against the Buckaroos the Mustangs were unable to halt the bullet-passes of Orville Burke in Vancouver on Saturday and dropped the tilt to the V.A.C. Gridders 22 to 11.

Coach Jim Smith, who has taken over the head coaching duties of the squad from Ed Rorvig, has been drilling the boys hard this week on a suitable pass defence, as well as sharpening up the locals own aerial attack.

Rorvig, who was unable to devote enough time to the coaching of the team due to the pressure of business, asked that someone be named head coach in his stead. He will not be lost to the team, however, as he will continue to assist whenever possible.

The Victoria forward wall has been tightened up considerably with the addition of Eric Crone, an experienced lineman, who formerly played with Los Angeles and Cleveland Rams of the pro circuit. Harold Turner,

Spencer, the converted lineman, is the driving force in the visitors' backfield and he will be ably assisted by quarterback Ernie Choukalos, halfbacks Hugh Hulbert and Sam Casey, Groff Murdoch will handle the tailback spot, and he needs no introduction to Victoria fans as he is well known for his English rugger and Canadian football ability.

Garnie Smith, Meralomas coach, hasn't the heavy line that other mainland teams possess, but the ends are very fast and will cause the local backs no little trouble with their tackling and pass-catching prowess.

Teams follow:
Meralomas—McNary, Doyle, L'Anson, Langley, Murdoch, Spencer, Choukalos, Smith, McMillen, Holmes, Brown, Blore, Turkington, Dionne, Morrison, Moore, Rouse, Rogers, Coghlan, Moldovan, Casey, Baker, Dorais, Ward, Hurlburt, Baldry, Cather, York, Grayston, Mauch, Mills, Scapnosky and Gilmore.

Mustangs—Garnett, Rynoski, Bing, Konkin, Chungcranes, Dale, Crockett, Denoni, Gibbs, Houston, Lund, Ross, Thorburn, Gower, Hallam, Hermonston, Metcalfe, O'Brien, O'Connell, West, Buchanan, Crone, Fermiston, Nelson, Scott, Buxton, Moonen, Barry, Bartlett, Belogus, Coulter, Douglas, McKay, Turner, Woodyard and Yeamans.

Navy-Bays Score Second Victories In Soccer League
The Royal Canadian Navy and Hudson's Bay soccer teams were victors in the regular midweek soccer matches yesterday afternoon.

At Colville Road the sailors went on to their second straight win by blanking Spencers 2 to 0. Outplaying the department store team, the Navy lads were unable to score until the 15-minute mark of the second half as Lloyd Mark and Les Bradley on defence turned them back time and time again.

Eddie DeCosta and Jimmy Trow were the goal getters for the bluejackets.

Hudson's Bay had little trouble with the Army eleven in the other match of the day played at Athletic Park as they trounced the soldiers 6 to 0. It was the Bays second win in two starts, and next week will see them pitted against the Navy squad in what should be the top game of the young season. Neither the Bays nor the Navy have been scored on in their two games to date.

Kirby Ghent with two, and A. Speller, L. Speller, Frank MacDonald and Ken Robertson with one apiece were the point makers for the Bays.

Hockey Snapshots

It was a case of getting his licks in early or not at all for Johnny Quilty, the Ottawa-born centre whom Montreal Canadiens demoted to Buffalo Bisons. The two clubs will be leagues apart when their respective schedules open so Quilty strutted his stuff with a timely goal against Canadiens last night.

The tally, followed by another Bison goal by Jerry Brown, enabled the American League team to play a 2 to 2 draw with the proud Stanley Cup holders in an exhibition tilt at Buffalo last night. For Canadians, Bobby Fillion and Billy Reay tallied.

From the way Quilty was traveling, observers felt it may not be long before he's back in the big time at that. Good enough to win the outstanding rookie award in the N.H.L. six years ago, Johnny found the Canadiens line-up a tough nut to crack after five years in the R.C.A.F.

Each brought hockey fame to the other, the Patricks and the Rangers. K.V.'s Battle Legion In Basketball Opener

The feature event on the opening card of the Victoria and district 1946 basketball season at the High School next Wednesday night will pit Harold Turner's K.V. five against the Canadian Legion in a senior A division game according to an announcement from Frank Elliott, secretary of the association last night.

The preliminaries, starting at 7, will see the Chinese Students and St. Louis College meet in an intermediate B boys match, followed one hour later by a senior B clash between the Brentwood Aces and the Eagles.

The K.V.'s, who operated in the senior division for the first time last year, will have most of their young team of that season on deck for the opener. Turner also has signed up a couple of new boys in the person of Ralph Baxter, a six-foot, six-inch centre, who was one of the leading scorers in the Calgary senior league during the war. The other new addition is Dick Chungcranes, speedy forward, who has returned to the team after a stint in the armed forces.

Ralph Anderson will start at centre, and he will be flanked by Chungcranes and Bob McKay, holding down the guard positions will be such well-known athletes as Duff McCaghey and Angus Stewart. Others who will probably see plenty of action during the evening are Ron Castner, Fred Ransom and Tom Ferris.

Four More Players Sign With Rangers
WINNIPEG (CP)—Four more players—three forwards and a defenceman—have landed berths with this season's edition of the New York Rangers in the National Hockey League.

Manager Frank Boucher said here today that right-wingers Bryan Hextall and Rene Trudell, left-winger Alf Pike and defenceman Bill Moe had fallen into line and signed Ranger contracts for this season. Five others, the first to do so, signed contracts on Tuesday.

Hextall, Poplar Point, Man., product, was out of action most of last season in the N.H.L. because of a liver ailment, and made his comeback a success at the Ranger training camp. Pike of Winnipeg and Moe of Duluth, Minn., both played for Rangers last season. Trudell of Trans-

World Series Cost This Lady $2,700

BOSTON (AP)—The world series may cost Mrs. Emma Auerbacher of Louisville, Ky., sister of Boston Red Sox owner Tom Yawkey, approximately $2,700.

She reported to police yesterday that thieves had entered her hotel room and got away with a diamond and emerald ring, valued at $2,500, a pair of $150 diamond earrings, a wallet containing $40 and six blank cheques bearing her name.

Castilloux Defends Canadian Title Against Dan Webb

MONTREAL (CP)—It will be the craft and skill of a veteran ring campaigner against the youth and endurance of a former preliminary boy who found his fistie eye overseas, when Dave Castilloux defends his Canadian lightweight crown against Danny Webb in a scheduled 12-round bout at the Forum here tonight.

Castilloux, a 30-year-old Montrealer who has held the featherweight, lightweight and welter titles of Canada, lays his last crown on the canvas when he steps into the ring against Webb, a little negro scrapper also from Montreal.

Casty, by virtue of his ring lore and years of experience, is favored 1 to 3 to take the match, and will also have a small weight drag on his 26-year-old opponent. The champion is expected to weigh in just under the class limit of 135 pounds, while Webb is expected to tip the scales at close to 130.

Castilloux will be gunning for big stakes in this bout, already sheared of his featherweight crown when he passed the weight limit, and deprived of his welter rule last Aug. 28 by Montreal's Johnny Greco, the champ says he will retire if he loses this one.

But he isn't worrying too much about it, and already is thinking of a return go with Greco if he passes Webb. The challenger also has big hopes for a win with efforts being made to line up Willie Pep as an opponent.

Buckaroos Win Rough Big Four Grid Clash

VANCOUVER (CP)—Pacific Buckaroos registered their first Big Four football win of the season Wednesday night, defeating the Vancouver Meralomas 1 to 0 to go into a second place tie with Victoria Mustangs.

It was fumbling that probably cost the Meraloma crew the game. Twice, led by big centre-half Vic Spencer, they got within the Buckaroo's five-yard line only to lose the balls on fumbles.

The only scoring came in the second quarter when Ken Pearson kicked to the deadline.

The Pacific squad had worked the ball down to the five when Sammy Caros was given a three-minute penalty and the team was penalized 25 yards for unnecessary roughness. At first Caros was banned for the rest of the game, but referee Hugh McWaters later made it a three-minute banishment.

Rough play was general throughout the game with Bob Staley and Ernie Choukalos and Jack Smith all given three-minute penalties in the second quarter for roughness. In the fourth, Smith was sent off for the rest of the game for continued rough play.

The next game will see V.A.C. and Buckaroos tangle Saturday.

World Series Highlights

By JOE REICHLER

BOSTON (AP)—Two of the hottest rumors at the series were quickly squelched last night when a source close to president Larry MacPhail of New York-Yankees, who refused to otherwise identify himself, said emphatically "You can bet all the money in your possession that neither Red Rolfe nor Bill Meyer will manage the Yankees next year—or any other year for that matter."

From the way Warren Giles, general manager of Cincinnati Reds, and Bill McKeechie, recently hired as coach of Cleveland Indians, were chinning at the World Series headquarters yesterday, one would hardly believe that it was the same Giles who handed Bill his walking papers, as field manager of the Reds last month. "Bill and I still are the best of friends," said Giles. "But a change for Bill was better all around. Sometimes it is not too healthy for a manager to stay too long in one city."

Eavesdropping in the Cardinals' clubhouse, one gets the idea that some of the players are hardly able to stand up, let alone play two hours of strenuous baseball. Terry Moore says he is going to have an operation performed on his bad left knee which has been bothering him all season. Whitey Kurowski will consult with club physician Robert F. (Doc) Hyland about an operation on his right elbow to remove some chips.

Del Rice will undergo an operation for the removal of callouses from the soles of his feet; Marty Marion, of course, will give his aching back a thorough examination; and Johnny Beasley intends to have his sore right arm get medical attention.

Rogers Hornsby, who picked the Cardinals to win in six games, called the turn when he said before yesterday's game that Dave Ferriss would "stand the Cards on their collective heads." Ferriss is one of the most underrated pitchers in baseball. He appears not to have enough speed and not enough of a curve ball, but he's the smartest pitcher in the majors today," said Rog.

Two League Soccer Matches Scheduled

Victoria West will meet the Oak Bay eleven at Heywood Avenue on Sunday afternoon, and the Canadian Legion will tangle with Esquimalt at Macdonald Park in the Monday holiday encounter, it was announced following a meeting of the soccer commission last night.

These will be the only two league matches scheduled for the week-end, both starting at 2:30. Wests checked in with a 4 to 2 win over Esquimalt last week, while the Oak Bay lads were dropping a close 1 to 0 decision to the Legion. It was the first time that the Oak Bay team had played together, and with a line-up that includes such stars as Harry Barber, Noel Morgan and Alan Reside, they should improve off their first match.

A practice will be held at Macdonald Park tonight, starting at 7, for Canadian Legion senior soccer team.

His team roster included Phil Cavaretta, colorful first baseman of the Chicago Cubs, and last year's National League batting champion. He finished this season with a mark of 294. From the St. Louis Browns is Denny Galehouse, one of their regular starting pitchers.

Detroit Tigers have contributed outfielder Roger Cramer and catcher Bob Swift. Cramer is recognized as having one of the best pair of eyes in baseball on balls and strikes. Another member of the pitching staff is Allie Reynolds of the Cleveland Indians. One of the infielders with the touring club is Mark Christman of the St. Louis Browns.

PEDEN WILL PLAY

Patterson stated that Doug Peden, well-known local baseballer who enjoyed a fine season with York of the Interstate League and Albany of the Eastern League, will turn out for the Victoria team and that he also hoped to have Reggie Clarkson, member of the Vancouver Capilano in the Western International League, in the local outfit.

Efforts will be made to have Charlie Strouger and Gil Bruce come down from Duncan to bolster the local line-up. Other players likely to see action against the touring stars will include Rookie Wright, Gar Taylor, Charlie Restani, along with pitchers Tommy Musgrave, Bill Prior and Stan Curry.

It is expected that the advance seat sale will be opened tomorrow and the game is certain to attract a tremendous turn-out.

PIGEON RACING

Victoria Junior Racing Pigeon Club will hold a meeting tonight at 1112 Balmoral Road, at 7. Other meetings this month will be held on October 16, 24 and 30.

Closing By-Laws Held Undemocratic

Opposition to all-day store closing by-laws as undemocratic and uneconomic was expressed today in a resolution received at the City Hall from the Native Sons of British Columbia, Post No. 1.

It was resolved that we, together with a large majority of citizens and consumers, protest the closing of places of business for one day or any part of a day.

"We think you should petition the Legislature to enact legislation for the employment of employees on a weekly, hourly basis, instead of shutting off trade entirely. This would create more employment, augment the payrolls and consequently increase the purchasing power from which you would materially benefit."

The resolution contended that on obtaining a license from the city, a firm became the servant of the people, and that therefore the general public was the majority concerned in deciding whether stores should close, and not the store-owners.

Organization of Pro-Roe classes for women in the Cordova Bay area will be the subject of a talk by Alfred Batchelor at McMoran's Pavilion Friday at 8. Women and girls over 16 are invited to attend.

Aged And Blind Give Generously To Community Chest

Community Chest canvassers are greatly heartened by the receptions they have been receiving from many of the people who might be considered least likely to contribute.

To date $58,440 has been received at Community Chest headquarters, and almost 40 per cent of the population remains to be canvassed to raise the quota of $100,000.

The special names division continues to head the list with $36,969 being raised on the quota of $56,000. Business division has turned in $2,424; residential canvass $15,930; commercial $165; public services $2,356; and industrial $596.

Among the more incidents related by one of the canvassers was the case of an old couple, both of them nearing 80, who are old-age pensioners. When the canvasser called the old gentleman said regretfully that he did not have any money, but his wife briskly interrupted with "Yes, we have. As soon as I heard about the Community Chest campaign I started saving and now I have $2," which she proudly presented to the canvasser.

Another canvasser called on a blind man, in receipt of a small pension. As soon as she noticed that he was blind, she said apologetically, "Oh, you can't afford to give, I'm sorry I bothered you."

"Lady," replied the blind man, "I can't afford not to give. Here is my dollar."

One old gentleman, aged 83, was afraid that he had been missed by the canvassers so, not knowing that campaign headquarters are at Prince Robert House, he trudged all the way from Government Street to Welfare House at 1234 Pandora Avenue, to turn in his dollar.

R. Armstrong Dies After Long Illness

Robert Armstrong, 2645 Bowker Avenue, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday at the age of 64, following a lengthy illness.

Mr. Armstrong, who was retired, was head of Armstrong Bros' shipyard until his retirement when the yard was purchased by J. Falconer, of Falconer Marine Industries Ltd.

Born in Winnipeg Sept. 16, 1882, he was a member of the Vancouver and Quadra Lodge No. 2 A.F. and A.M., and Columbia Royal Arch Chapter, an honorary life member of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club, a member of the Victoria Rotary Club, and a member of the board of management of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

Department And Chain Stores Seek Own Holiday Legislation

A new move in Victoria's battle over all-day closing on Wednesdays came today with indication that two big department stores and three variety chain stores in the city plan to petition the Legislature at its next session to have these stores closed as single units.

If such legislation is obtained, David Spencer Ltd., Hudson's Bay Co., S. S. Kresge Co. Ltd., Metropolitan Stores Ltd., and F. W. Woolworth Co. Ltd., each will be regarded for holiday legislation as one big store and not as several stores under one firm's name.

In this way, the big stores would either be open in all departments or entirely closed, and individual departments would not be subject to separate closing.

"We think the tourists and the general public of Victoria should be considered," a spokesman said. "These stores are working on a basis of 39 to 41 1/2 hours a week, too, and we feel that as far as labor is concerned, those are good working hours."

Five big stores in Victoria kept their meat departments open Wednesday morning despite the recently-passed by-law requiring that all meat stores be closed all day on Wednesdays, these stores contending the by-law is invalid because too great a time was allowed to elapse between first and final reading of the by-law. No action was taken against the firms by the city, nor was any contemplated, it was learned at the City Hall.

By a 51 per cent vote of all meat dealers, a request can be made for the rescinding of the present by-law, and if 75 per cent of the meat dealers approve a new by-law, the association will petition the City Council for it.

Reginald Williams, president of the association, said that as the Sanich Council had passed a closing by-law effective next Wednesday, it would be unfair for butcher shops in the city to remain open Wednesday mornings.

The association decided to seek the co-operation of wholesalers in preventing the sale of turkeys at wholesale prices to other than retailers. Members present at the meeting expressed the intention of asking a $2 deposit on turkeys this year to ensure persons ordering turkeys would call for them.

understand why 120 students should occupy a building which could accommodate 600, and why 600 other students should be confined to another building with a capacity of 200," the statement concludes.

The B.C. Building Contractors' Association, at an executive meeting here, passed a resolution calling on the government to eliminate all restrictions, price-fixing and priorities on building materials as the only solution to the existing housing shortage.

The resolution, which has been forwarded to R. W. Mayhew, M.P., reads: "This association strongly recommends that all government restrictions, price fixing and priorities be eliminated on all building materials as we believe that such regulations have retarded production and caused black marketing. We are convinced that freedom from such regulations and the elimination of rent control of new building is the only solution to the existing housing shortage and confusion in the building industry."

They charge that "after 18 months of vague promises and half assurances the provincial government has arrived at a wholly impossible solution, that the college be given any 'surplus space' in the Normal School."

LOGICAL SOLUTION
They reiterated the reason set out by the faculty showing the impossibility of splitting the student body in two.

The "only one logical solution," the students state, is "an exchange of buildings between Victoria College and the Normal School. The Normal students would be comfortable and safe in Dunsmuir Castle; the danger of fire would be eliminated and the sanitary facilities fully adequate for the small enrollment of 115 people."

"Indeed, the Normal School turned out some very good teachers during the war with only a fraction of the space and comfort they could enjoy at Craigdarroch. Also, as plans are being discussed to include the Victoria branch of the Normal School under one faculty, probably they occupy will be essentially a temporary site."

In the concluding paragraph of the open letter the students ask the citizens of Greater Victoria "to help remedy the critical situation which is impairing the education of such large numbers by signing our petition."

At the present time, Sir Godfrey said, Britain's imports exceed her exports by $30,000,000 per month. This has been made possible by large loans from United States, Canada and other nations.

Sir Godfrey, who met Premier John Hart and Labor Minister George S. Pearson and attended a luncheon attended by cabinet ministers and other government officials, believes there is not an adequate exchange of information and ideas between Britain and the Dominions.

City Council To Back School Board On College Problem

The question of the overcrowding at Victoria College and the possibility of exchanging its building for the Normal School will come before Tuesday's City Council meeting.

Ald. F. G. Mulliner, a former chairman of the school board, will propose a motion "That the proposal for the exchange of the Normal School and Victoria College, as desired by the Greater Victoria School Board, be endorsed by the City Council."

He said that he would further move that the resolution be conveyed to the cabinet when the Fire Warden, together with the school board interview the government on the subject.

Ald. Margaret D. Christie, another former school trustee, will second the motion, and it is believed that it will pass with the unanimous approval of the council.

College Students Make Appeal To Victoria Citizens

In an open letter to the citizens of Greater Victoria, students at Victoria College today explained the purpose of their parade demonstration and what they hoped to achieve, charging that "awarding the Normal School building to 115 students and cramming 600 college students into tiny Dunsmuir Castle has been unjust and illogical."

The letter continued: "We know that dividing the student body into two parts over two miles apart is no solution—the only answer is a complete switch of buildings."

The students point out, "At the Normal School there are 13 large classrooms, three labs, ample office space, outside buildings and extensive grounds for 115 students who have four classes."

"At Victoria College there are seven small classrooms and one lab, with other labs held at Victoria High School up to 10:30 p.m. There is little office space, no gymnasium, not even enough air for 600 students. Not only is it uncomfortable and unsanitary for its present numbers, but it is dangerous."

They charge that "after 18 months of vague promises and half assurances the provincial government has arrived at a wholly impossible solution, that the college be given any 'surplus space' in the Normal School."

Britain, Turkey, U.S. Take Stand On Dardanelles

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States, Britain and Turkey are presenting a solid front of resistance to Russia's renewed demands on the Dardanelles, while leaving the way open to full discussion of revised Soviet rights in the Straits.

Diplomatic authorities disclosed this today as the State Department here announced a $25,000,000 credit to Greece—another troubled Mediterranean country—for the purchase of surplus U.S. army property overseas.

That announcement is in line with informal conclusions reached by the London and Washington governments during the Greek civil war crisis about three weeks ago that the United States would back the present Greek government with substantial economic assistance. A similar decision is reported in the case of Turkey.

The Greek credit raises to $45,000,000 the total amount of financial aid granted that country by the United States for surplus property purchases.

KEY COUNTRIES

Greece, Turkey and Iran are considered key countries in the control of the Middle East and eastern Mediterranean.

On Aug. 7 Moscow sent to Ankara several demands for changes in the Dardanelles, including control by the so-called Black Sea powers which Russia dominates and joint defence of the important passage by Russia and Turkey.

With American and British backing, Turkey rejected the latter two demands, and the United States took a similar view in a note to Russia Aug. 19.

Last month Russia sent Turkey a new note restating insistence on joint Russo-Turkish defence of the Straits. Diplomatic informants here say Turkey now is replying to Moscow with another flat rejection, but leaving the way open for direct talks.

Furthermore it was said the United States is sending Russia a note reiterating its opposition to any Russian military expansion into the Dardanelles. Britain is reported to have taken a similarly flat stand, although in exactly what manner was not disclosed.

Navy Reserve Here If Building Found Says G. W. Mills

If a suitable building can be found in Victoria, there is no reason why H.M.C.S. Malahat cannot be re-commissioned as a reserve division, according to Gordon W. Mills, C.M.G., deputy minister for naval affairs, who, with Rear-Admiral G. L. Stephens, C.B.E., met today with Rear-Admiral E. R. Mainguy, O.B.E., R.C.N., Commanding Officer, Pacific Coast.

Defence Minister Douglas C. Abbott had approved only the temporary de-commissioning of the reserve division here, Mr. Mills pointed out.

At present, it was pointed out, present facilities at 1238 Government Street were inadequate for a reserve division and H.M.C. Dockyard was too far away for reservists in Victoria.

Mr. Mills added that in most cities where reserve divisions had been established, land had been donated by the city concerned or other aid had been given.

Use of a frigate for a reserve division here was considered impractical, Admiral Mainguy said. The carrier Warrior is only to be based at Esquimalt temporarily. Scheduled to arrive here before Christmas, the carrier will be based here approximately two months before going on cruise.

City and Esquimalt firemen joined forces to save a house at Craigflower and Dominion Roads from being destroyed shortly before noon today. The fire was extinguished before extensive damage was done.

Heart disease can develop in connection with beri-beri, a form of Vitamin B deficiency. The condition, which is well known in the Orient, is uncommon in Canada, except for those few cases which occur in alcoholics and in those suffering from serious nutritional disorders (pellagra and nutrition neuritis). Many alcoholics develop starvation sickness because they try to obtain their calories from alcohol and not from food. Body organs are seldom injured by alcohol unless there is associated starvation. It is practically impossible to produce liver cirrhosis in experimental animals unless food is restricted when alcohol is administered.

Canadian issues were quiet at midday. Dome Mines eased 1/4 and Distillers Seagram gained 1/4.

Waterfront Fire

Hits Charlottetown

Herring Fishing

Off To Poor Start

May Equal Quotas

CHARLOTTETOWN (CP) — A fire which broke out on Stewart's Wharf early today destroyed 10 buildings, causing losses estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The blaze started about 1 a.m. and is believed to have originated in the boiler-room of the Bruce Stewart foundry. It quickly raced through the buildings, most of them wooden, destroying the boiler-room, pattern shop and coal shed of the Bruce Stewart foundry, spread to the Island Fertilizer plant, gutted a coal shed and three empty buildings owned by the W. D. Gillis Coal Company and destroyed three railway box cars.

This was disclosed today in the first bulletin of the director of western fisheries for the Dominion government, but George Alexander, assistant commissioner of fisheries for the provincial government, said: "It doesn't mean a thing."

He indicated the low catch to date may have resulted from fewer boats having been engaged in fishing herring and good herring fishing for a few days would easily overcome this deficit in the catch.

Last season the 30,000-ton herring quota for the lower east coast of Vancouver Island, the most productive herring fishing area, was easily taken. As a result, as in former years, the quota was raised to 40,000 tons and this catch was easily made.

To last Saturday only 22,461 cases
